Only a Girl.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1927).

RUTH ELDER, courageous young Florida girl, is safe on a ship that picked her out of the ocean.

Ruth's mother, who prayed constantly while her daughter was flying and put the family Bible in the airship, weeps for joy. Other mothers are weeping with her.

THE nation will hope that Ruth Elder and other girls will stay on the ground hereafter, or do their flying over land, and let men like Lindbergh, if there are any like him, do the ocean flying.

Columbus's job was for a man, and so is the job of ocean flying.

The Greek philosopher jumping into the mouth of a vulcano to attract attention was brave, but foolish.

It is folly in anybody but a lion tamer to enter the lion's cage.

PEKING, where sleek mandarins live in silk gowns, shivers at news of 15,000 Mongolian horsemen approaching the capital.

From Peking, west through Russia, Germany, down to the Pyrenees, populations have learned to fear the men with slanting eyes that murdered as they came.

THOSE Mongolians and Tartars of whom Genghis Khan and Attila made conquering armies, are no longer dangerous to the civilized races, that can easily dispose of them with poison gases and bombs from the air, as long as they ride to war on shaggy ponies.

But what if the airplane spreads through the world as Ford's car has spread, and Mongols and Tartars come travelling through the clouds? On that day prosperous Americans in their counting rooms will shiver, with good reason, as the soft mandarin shivers now in Peking. Dollars won't protect them.

PROFESSOR COLLINS of Smithsonian Institution says Eskimos leave their wives for five months, each year, to make a good catch of seals certain.

At the end of the five months the bladders of all seals captured during the year are thrown into the water to please the seal tribe.

SEPARATING from women for a part of each year is often the rule in many savage tribes. Many Red Indians paid little attention to their wives except in spring. This gave the squaws the rest of the year to look after the children, and was probably a relief.

If the plan were tried in this country, making the "husband's absence" eleven months, instead of five, the number of divorces might diminish. Dull minds are easily bored.

KING ALBERT of Belgium, estimable gentleman, but, in the saying of the French, one who "did not invent gunpowder," exclaimed "only a girl" when he heard that his grandchild wasn't a boy.

He wouldn't have said, "only a girl" had he known some of the real queens—Elizabeth, Marie, Theresa, Semiramis, and especially, that African queen, Tomyris, whose son was killed by King Cyrus, when the son foolishly got drunk on wines that Cyrus left as a trap.

TOMYRIS, who had warned Cyrus not to hurt her son, caught the great king, chopped off his head, put it in a goat skin full of human blood, saying, "now drink all you like." "Only a girl," does not describe her, or Bertha, mother of Charlemagne, Nancy Hanks, mother of Lincoln, Letitia Ramolino, the broad-hipped mother of Napoleon, or Olympias, who made Alexander the Great. Which is your favorite mother in history?

THE breaking point comes at different places in different individuals.

Othello choked his lady because he was suspicious. She had done nothing. The Da Rimini hunchback murdered his brother and his wife because they made eyes at each other.

Things like that would not disturb Frank Cocht of Chicago. When she put poison in his wine, he only remonstrated with his wife, gently. When she tried to choke him he locked himself in his room and waited patiently. But when she killed his 30 canary birds, he sued for divorce.

MARCONI will be welcomed everywhere in America as one of the world's great teachers and benefactors.

He is one of many living proofs that ancient genius, inherited from the Romans, still exists and works in our day.

NO NATION surpasses Italy in its contributions to civilization, art, science, and the elevation of the human race generally.

No nation has contributed more to the building of this country than Italy, through the thousands of good workers and able business men sent here.

13th Lucky Day For Ruth's Pilot

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(U.S.)—Thirteen is Capt. George Haldeman's lucky number, according to his wife.

"You see, he was saved on the thirteenth. Our wedding day is November 13 and he was thirteenth in line for physical examination when he went to war," she explained here yesterday.

SAVE KIDNAPED GIRL

Fought Storm All Night

(Copyright, 1927, by New York Daily Mirror. All rights reserved throughout the world. Publication in part or in whole, without permission, will be vigorously prosecuted.)

Herewith begins the exclusive story of Ruth Elder, aviatrix extraordinary, and her co-pilot, Capt. George Haldeman, who were rescued at sea Thursday off the Azores Islands after their transatlantic plane, the American Girl, was forced down in its attempted flight from New York to Paris. Ruth Elder's story, which will give the full details of the great adventure, will appear daily. This is the first detailed report from the flyers to their backers, sent by wireless from the rescue steamer Barendrecht, off the Azores. Messrs. McArdle and Cornell are the financial backers of the American Girl flight.

S. S. BARENDRECHT, Radio, Oct. 13.

T. H. McArdle and H. E. Cornell, Waldorf, New York:

Beautiful trip Tuesday night and Wednesday all day. Went into bad area at 12,000 feet. Hit terrible storm nine last night. Fought it all night. Worst I have ever seen, and never expected to get out alive.

After making new course this morning, oil pressure went down to zero. Forced to land alongside Barendrecht. American Girl exploded and burnt up. Nothing saved. Was in air exactly 35 hours to here.

Can take passenger boat to Paris if advisable. This tanker headed for Galveston, Tex. Advise us care this boat.

CAPTIVE IN AUTO FREED

Overpowered in the street, bundled into an automobile by three men who stifled her screams for help, and then rescued after a battle by two patrolmen as she was being taken to a lonely spot in a railroad yard by her abductors, were the experiences of Miss Josephine Swick, 17, of 3060 Wayne street, all within about 20 minutes early this morning.

Two of her alleged assailants, who said they were Brown Sharp, 24, of 163 Banner way, and Joseph Vosuck, 19, of 2945 Penn avenue, are under arrest. They were captured as the automobile in which Miss Swick was being transported near the railroad yards at the foot of Twenty-seventh street.

Patrolmen D. Owens and Joseph Lynch, who rescued Miss Swick and captured her alleged kidnapers, were directed in their chase by pedestrians who had heard screams at Twenty-seventh street and Penn avenue as two men leaped from an automobile, overpowered Miss Swick and speeded away after tossing her into the rear of the machine, one of them choking her to stop her outcries.

Ten men ran from the vicinity in which Sharp and Vosuck were arrested and police say they believe the men awaited the arrival of the kidnapers with Miss Swick.

As Owens came upon the scene, the men fled in all directions. While grappling with Sharp and Vosuck, a third man who was in the automobile, escaped. Sharp refused to submit to the handcuffs and attempted to strike Owens, insisting that he was innocent.

Vosuck took advantage of the argument and attempted to run, but was brought to the ground by two blows from the officer's blackjack. More police went to the scene, and the men and the girl were rushed to the Penn avenue station.

The girl pleaded with the officers not to arrest her, insisting that she had done nothing wrong.

A pedestrian told police Vosuck had thrown a revolver under a box car. The gun was found.

The kidnaping was first reported to the police at the Penn avenue station by Adam Kowalska, of 3010 Paulowna street, and John Finley of 4044 Geneva street, who witnessed the struggle in Twenty-seventh street.

They were almost a block away at

PLANE BURNED AT SEA

By International News Service.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Forced down at sea after battling storm and mechanical trouble, the flying American girl, Ruth Elder, and her comrade in adventure, George W. Haldeman, were safe and sound today on the Dutch steamer Barendrecht, steaming steadily for the Azores. They are due to arrive at Horta at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Their monoplane, the American Girl, took fire after their rescue, and lies beneath the waves of the Atlantic, a mass of charred wreckage.

When forced to alight they had covered more than 2,600 miles from New York in the longest flight ever made entirely over water. They fell short of the European continent by some 600 miles and of Paris, their goal, by about 1,200.

A little more light was thrown on their aerial odyssey in a wireless message from Capt. Goos of the rescue ship. This showed that they had encountered a storm zone, as predicted by the New York weather experts.

Fighting the storms for eight hours they emerged triumphant, but found themselves far to the south of their course. Then the oil pressure gauge dropped, revealing that the feed pipe was broken.

They continued to fly as best they could, thus handicapped, for five hours, fearing at every moment that the pistons would jam. Then about 250 miles northeast of the Azores, sighting the Barendrecht, they headed for her and alighted alongside.

Sailors made fast the plane and the intrepid girl and her companion clambered aboard, "well, but fatigued," as Capt. Goos reported. Their first thought was for their beloved plane, American Girl, and the Dutch captain agreed to attempt its salvage, as it was not damaged, so skillfully had it been brought down upon the water.

Lines were attached and the task of getting it aboard begun when in some manner, probably through fuel spilling on the overheated engine, the gasoline was ignited. There were two explosions and the graceful mono-

HEROINES OF AIR TO MEET ON ISLAND IN ATLANTIC

HORTA, the Azores, Oct. 14.—Two heroines of the air will meet here on a tiny island of the Atlantic if plans of Lilli Dillienz, Viennese actress, materialize.

Mme. Dillienz, a passenger aboard the big Junkers plane D-1230, which arrived here today at 2:15, after hopping off from Lisbon, Portugal, on its trip from Germany to New York, is anxious to meet the American beauty contest winner who so nearly gave her life in an effort to duplicate the feat of Col. Charles Lindbergh.

Miss Elder and her pilot, George W. Haldeman, are on the steamer Barendrecht bound for Ponta Delgada, St. Michael Island.

The Junkers crew was loud in its praise of Haldeman's handling of the plane after his oiling system failed.

The Viennese actress, as well as her flying mates, expressed a desire to meet the Americans and aid them in any possible way.

Mme. Dillienz said her flight would be delayed until tomorrow in hope of arranging a meeting.

ZANESVILLE MAN DIES KNEELING IN PRAYER

ZANESVILLE, O., Oct. 14.—Polycarp Brailer, 79, died in St. Thomas' Roman Catholic Church here while kneeling in prayer. Heart disease was the cause of death.

THE WEATHER

Fair tonight, possibly light frost; Saturday fair with rising temperature.

ASSESSING PAYROLL BANNED

Mayor Charles H. Kline issued this statement today:

"I have issued instructions to department heads to countermand any request for campaign contributions from city employes."

The Mayor's attitude was regarded as quieting the rebellion reported among city employes who were incensed at indications that those who salaries were higher than $2,100 would be "taked" 2 per cent of their annual pay envelopes for contributions to the Republican organization.

Edward G. Lang, director of the Department of Public Works, admitted that a request for the 2 per cent contribution had been made to his employes, but denied that it had been any more than a request.

Seeking News of Girl Flier, Hit by Auto

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 14.—On his way to a neighbor's telephone to inquire for information about Ruth Elder, transatlantic flier, Robert Hart of Handy Creek township, a newspaper correspondent, was run down on the Pittsburgh road as he darted out of the way of one automobile into the path of another. He sustained severe injuries.

Again—First With the Latest

President Coolidge

The first three passengers to hop off the special train that brought President Coolidge and his party to Pittsburgh yesterday were three Sun-Telegraph representatives. Two were reporters—the third a photographer. They had boarded the train at Altoona and accompanied the party to this city. That is why the Sun-Telegraph was able to present its host of readers with the first pictures of the chief executive and his party an hour before any other paper. That is why the Sun-Telegraph published the news and sidelights of the arrival an hour before any other paper.

Ruth Elder

Just one hour before any other newspaper in Pittsburgh had word of the salvation of Ruth Elder and her pilot, Capt. George Haldeman, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph published the news—and published it authentically and accurately. This is not the first instance of the service—the news service—that the Sun-Telegraph furnishes its friends. It simply bears out that the Sun-Tele again gives the latest news—and gives it first.

Pastor and Family Vanish

A Baptist minister, his wife and two children disappeared from Pittsburgh October 1 and have not been heard from.

The Rev. E. K. Stroup, resigned pastor of Calvary Babtist Temple, Sheraden, left the city with his family for Philadelphia, but have not reached that city, according to police.

Two truckloads of their household effects, transported by R. S. Fries, 4204 Penn avenue, have been delivered to the Philadelphia address, Fries told authorities, but have not been receipted for.

Police are trying to find relatives of the family.

FRENCH ARTIST WINS CARNEGIE EXHIBIT FIRST PRIZE

CARNEGIE INTERNATIONAL -:- ART JURY AWARDS -:- EXHIBIT PRIZES

FIRST PRIZE

"Still Life," by the French painter, Henri Matisse, was awarded first prize ($1,500).

THIRD PRIZE

Third ($500) went to Andrew Dasburg for "Poppies."

SECOND PRIZE

"Motherhood," by the Belgian artist, Anto Carte, won second prize ($1,000).

GRAYSON TO HOP OFF TONIGHT

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Oct. 14.—(INS.)—Due to unfavorable weather reports, Mrs. Frances Grayson announced at 4:30 a. m. today that she was forced again to postpone her flight to Denmark.

All was in preparation for the take-off at sunrise.

Mrs. Grayson said she hoped weather conditions would be favorable for a take-off across the Atlantic by 8 o'clock tonight.

At 5 a. m. weather reports from the Radio Corporation of America, the U. S. Leviathan and Sable Island were brought to the plane's crew at their hotel. After studying the reports for a half hour, Mrs. Grayson announced that the fight had been postponed.

She expressed keen disappointment, but was convinced that an attempt to take off would have been foolhardy.

The next low tide is at 8 o'clock tonight and Mrs. Grayson said she hoped to be able to take advantage of it and start for Copenhagen.

RUTH FORCED DOWN

plane which had served its crew so well was soon a mass of flames, obliging the Dutch master, in view of the nature of his own cargo, to drop tackle and sheer off, leaving the machine to its fate. So quickly and completely was it burned that the sailors were unable to save anything on board.

The "Glorious Failure," as it was hailed in Paris, both thrilled and relieved the French public, particularly the feminine portion. Parisiennes were pleased that one of their sex had set a record for continuous overseas flying.

Newspaper commentators, in common with a number of French airmen, hold that, much as the flight was to be admired as an exhibition of bravery and hardihood, its complete success could have served no useful purpose.

Regret was voiced that a flight which seemed destined to end so well should have failed from such a small cause as the breaking of an oil pipe. At the same time technicians asserted that this was one more proof that transatlantic fliers should use multi-motored planes and not depend on one engine which could be disabled by a small mechanical defect.

WAYNESBURG'S NEW BANK TO OPEN NOV. 1

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Oct. 14.—Announcement was made today that the new First National Bank and Trust Company will open November 1. The institution succeeds the Citizens National Bank which closed its doors August 16. W. C. FRENCHMAN WINS ART 1ST PRIZE

Modern art, as expressed by the exponents of the most advanced schools of painting abroad as well as in the United States, is the outstanding feature of the twenty-sixth International Exhibition, opened yesterday at Carnegie Institute. A few works by Elmer W. Redfield, in the American galleries; portraits of local personages by Leopold Seyffert, cheerful subjects by Beppe Ciardi and Antonio Mancini, Italians, are about the only exceptions in 400 canvasses representing the artists of 16 nations.

No conservatism seems to have been shown by the jury in selecting examples of the modern school and the six prize-winning pictures belong to this class.

The first prize of $1,500, one of the most coveted in the art world, was awarded "Still Life," by Henri Matisse of France.

Anto Carte of Belgium carried off the second prize of $1,000 for his painting "Motherhood."

The third prize of $500 went to an American artist, Andrew Dasburg of Santa Fe, N. M. An Italian painter, Antonio Donghi, of Rome, was awarded the first honorable mention, which carries with it a prize of $300. Another American, Bernard Karfiol, of New York City, won second honorable mention.

The special prize of $500 offered by the Garden Club of Allegheny County for the best painting of flowers or a garden was awarded to Max Pechstein of Germany for his picture "Calla Lilies."

Henri Matisse, who won first prize, is a native of France and was born in 1869. He first studied law, but abandoned his legal studies in 1892 and studied art assiduously, serving first an apprenticeship to the old masters, but soon yielded to the influence of the impressionists. He is now the acknowledged leader of advanced art in France.

The winner of the second prize, Anto Carte, a young Belgian, has recently come into prominence in this country, his first work being introduced to America through the twenty-first Carnegie International in 1922. A number of his works are owned by Pittsburgh collectors.

Andrew Dasburg, who won the third prize, was born in Paris of American parentage. He came to this country and studied under Kenyon Cox, but returning to France, he soon came under the modern influence of Matisse and Picasso.

Italian artists are represented by Antonio Donghi, who was accorded the first honorable mention. He is pre-eminently a modernist.

Bernard Karfiol, winner of the second honorable mention, is a native of Brooklyn and studied under Laurens in Paris. His work here is well known.

Max Pechstein, who won the prize offered by the Garden Club of Allegheny County, is a member of the German expressionist group. In offering the prize the Garden Club seeks to interest artists in the subjects they find in flower gardens and to encourage the people in general to make gardens worthy of the best efforts of artists.

The Pittsburgh exhibition will continue until December 4. The paintings will then be taken to Brooklyn and later to San Francisco.

Members of the jury of award for the exhibition were Maurice Grieffenhagen of Great Britain, Karl Hofer of Germany, Maurice Denis of France, Felice Casorati of Italy and Eugene Speicher, Abram Poole, Eugene Savage and Horatio Walker of the United States. Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts at Carnegie Institute, acted as president of the jury.

Ruth's Flight Motives Criticized by Paper

BELFAST, Ireland, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Joseph Devlin's newspaper, the Irish News, is severe with Ruth Elder and women flyers in general.

"A woman had no business to attempt such a flight," the paper says. "It was perfectly ridiculous to read of this young person's chatter, of her preparations for the event—her vanity bag, Chinese ring, knickers, black and red four-in-hand tie and pastel-shaded band over dark brown hair—and to remember that she was going to risk her life just to gratify her stupid vanity.

"She is a married woman. Her husband wisely remained at home. If Ruth has any sense left she will join him now and keep house for him.

"Another American lady is waiting to start on the same journey. She should be taken home by her relatives. If they used a slight rod to tame her ardent spirits no one would censure them too severely.

"Men in the summer may strive to equal Lindbergh. Women should stay at home."

HUSBAND LAUDS RUTH'S DARING

PANAMA, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Lyle Womack, husband of Ruth Elder, believes his wife is "the bravest girl in the world."

"I am sorry Ruth failed to make Paris," he said after receiving word of her rescue at sea. "It must have been a keen disappointment to her, but that is nothing to me—the main thing is, she's safe.

"If Ruth had been in her coffin and had suddenly revived and embraced me, my relief could be no greater than it is now. I could not be happier than in anticipation of being reunited soon with the bravest girl in the world."

the time. Kowalska notified the police, while Finley first pursued the speeding automobile on foot. It outdistanced him in Smallman street.

The patrolmen, who were nearby, took up the trail and within a few minutes found the machine at the railroad yards.

At the station the girl gave the following statement to police:

"I was walking along Penn avenue when at Twenty-seventh street an automobile containing three men pulled up to the curb. One of the men, Vosuck, called to me, saying that he wished to tell me something. I knew Vosuck by sight, but I did not stop. The two in the back seat then got out of the car, and, while one of them put his hand over my mouth, the other picked me up and threw me into the rear seat. In the car my cries for help were stifled. They then took me down near the railroad and in a minute the police came."

The prisoners refused to talk when taken to the police station and were locked up on suspicious person charges.

coat collars and pulled their hat brims low over their eyes.

Along came two hard-looking customers. They walked up to the gridders and grabbed them, shoving guns into their sides and flashing detective badges.

"We want you," muttered the plain clothes men, "you just stuck up a grocery store."

After a hectic five minutes of explanation Felix and Andy were released with due apologies. They jumped into a taxi and went back to their hotel, where they spent the remainder of the afternoon in seclusion.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that produced the rainy condition over the East during the past two days has developed eastward off the Atlantic coast beyond the field of observations, and high pressure now covers the entire country from the central plains to the Atlantic coast with its crest over the Central Mississippi and the Ohio valleys. As a result of the change to high pressure the skies are clear over the Plain states, the Mississippi Valley and the Gulf states, and clearing is in progress over the Ohio Valley states. There was also a fall in temperature throughout the high pressure area, producing light to heavy frosts in Wisconsin, Illinois and Missouri, and heavy to killing frosts in Iowa.

Low pressure appears over the Northwest, with its center over Northern Montana and Southern Saskatchewan. The depression extends southward along the eastern slope of the Rockies, but as yet no precipitation has occurred. It has caused a considerable rise in temperature throughout the Northwest section.

CHANNEL SWUM BY WOMAN

DOVER, England, Oct. 14.—The number of successful English Channel swims was raised to 14 when Mrs. Ivy Gill, of Sheffield, landed at Shakespeare Beach, near here, shortly after midnight this morning, the third woman to perform the feat in less than a week.

Mrs. Gill, 24-year-old typist and only recently a bride, started from Cape Gris Nez, France, at 9:11 a. m. yesterday and landed on the English coast at 12:20 a. m. today. She was exhausted at the finish of the long grind, and her first words on reaching shore were: "I can't stand."

The manager, trainer and boatman who accompanied her announced that they were ready to sign affidavits as to the authenticity of the swim.

Her time of 15 hours 9 minutes is 1 hour 59 minutes slower than the record for women claimed by Dr. Dorothy Cochrane Logan (Mona McLellan) of 13 hours 10 minutes, and is 28 minutes slower than the mark of 14 hours 31 minutes set by Gertrude Ederle.

WAVERLY OIL CO. BUYS PLANE

A small type Waco biplane has been purchased by the Waverly Oil Works Company for testing and light passenger use, according to an announcement today by D. W. Hovey, vice president of the company.

The plane is due to arrive at Bettis Field tomorrow. It cost $2,500. A variety of gasolines and oils will be used in an effort to determine the most efficient fuel for air service. The plane will be used also to carry officials of the company to various oil fields, Mr. Hovey said.

THEY SCORE IN WILMERDING FEUD

MILES SHENEFELT JOHN WILLIAMS PATROLMAN R. R. HAHN

Long at odds with Wilmerding police force, Williams, private sleuth, ex-Federal agent, won a jury victory in Criminal Court when he was acquitted on charges of pointing firearms and assault and battery, and two of three Wilmerding policemen, Capt. C. F. Boyle and Moody Champ, were found guilty, in a cross suit, of felonious assault on Williams. Patrolman Hahn, shown with his arms about Williams, was the one policeman acquitted. Shenefelt testified that when he tried to go bail for Williams, police at first refused him admission to the jail. Williams testified he had been beaten up in the police station after he had tried to serve a warrant on Patrolman Champ, charged with shooting a Negro woman in Patton township.

SUMMERALL MAY LOSE HIS RANK

By WILLIAM P. FLATRE,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, highest ranking active officer of the United States Army, stands to be either broken or severely reprimanded for demanding habitable quarters for soldiers, it is intimated at the War Department.

It is believed here that the drastic order recalling him from his Western tour was issued by President Coolidge in his capacity as commander-in-chief because of a characteristic speech by the famous warrior and chief of staff at San Antonio on Octor 11. Gen. Summerall said in an address to troops:

"I have seen German prisoners housed in better quarters than you are now occupying."

The General was on a tour of inspection of all government reservations. He was recalled and caught the first train for Washington in such haste that he left his aide behind.

Summerall Recall Personally Made by President

It was President Coolidge who ordered Gen. Summerall, Army chife of staff, to return to Washington from the Pacific coast, members of the President's party made known before starting back to Washington last night.

It was said that the President desires to talk over budget matters pertaining to the Army with Summerall. The belief was prevalent, however, that Summerall may be disciplined for his criticisms of the government for failing to provide adequate housing quarters for troops.

It was recalled that Secretary of the Navy Wilbur was summarily ordered back to Washington from the Pacific coast in 1924 after he had made speeches offensive to the administration during the presidential campaign.

EATING GREEN APPLES KILLS BOSWELL BOY

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 14.—Cholera morbus, resulting from eating green apples, caused the death of Robert L. Perian, 2, of Boswell, at Memorial Hospital here yesterday.

Jury Holds Remus in Murder

By International News Service.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 14.—The Hamilton county grand jury early today returned an indictment charging George Remus, former "bootleg king," with first degree murder in connection with the killing of his wife, Mrs. Imogene Remus, whom Remus shot to death in Eden Park here October 6.

The indictment charges Remus "did deliberately, premeditatedly and maliciously murder and kill" Mrs. Remus.

Remus probably will be arraigned Saturday morning.

The indictment was returned after two days spent by the grand jury in probing the killing.

ORDER AGAINST UNION ASKED

A bill of equity has been filed in Common Pleas Court by the Hoffman Henon Company, contractors, against John Bradley, president of the International Brotherhood Local Electrical Workers, District No. 5, to restrain Bradley from interfering with electrical work being done on the Stanley-Davis-Clark Theater Building. The company says electrical elevator control signals are being installed by the elevator company with union labor. The union holds the work should be done by Pittsburgh workers.

COOLIDGE LAUDS WALSH'S WORK

Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh now knows how it feels to shake the hand of President Coolidge—and to be congratulated by the Chief Executive. Upon leaving for Washington last night from East Liberty, the President greeted Walsh and complimented him on the manner in which the superintendent's staff handled the program.

FROST WARNING BROADCAST

A light frost was forecast for tonight by the United States Weather Bureau here today. Temperatures dropped steadily during the day and it was predicted tonight's chill might be sufficient to do material harm to vegetation. Light frosts, not sufficient to do any damage, were recorded on September 22 and October 9.

SHE CHOOSES TO LOVE

PRINCESS ILEANA

Europe was stirred today by rumors, apparently well-founded, that Princess Ileana of Rumania had eloped with a young naval lieutenant. Censorship placed on news of the royal family's doings added substance to the tale. In cafes and salons alike Europeans were thrilled by the spectacle of a royal princess daring to love as she chose.

"Pa Pitt" Sorry as His Party Ends

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY.

Well, the party is over. The flags are down, everything is quiet and the guests of honor have gone back home. It was a wonderful party and we're sorry they had to leave so soon. But you can't eat your cake and have it.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge left a good impression behind them last night when they entrained for Washington. Pittsburgh gave them a regular Pa Pitt welcome and they liked it and showed it very plainly.

Who says President Coolidge can't laugh? Can't, in fact, unloosen those famous tight Coolidge muscles and beam. He did it just once yesterday. But there was the proof!

It was when on his tour of Carnegie Museum of Fine Arts he went into the hall and found thousands of gayly decked students waiting to receive him. As they broke into their famous "Ski-Hi" yell for the President and rattled the rafters with their "Hoot Mon" for Mrs. Coolidge, our "Silent Cal" just naturally laughed.

There was a mist in Mrs. Coolidge's eyes. Perhaps she was thinking of her own big boy now in college and the dear one who would have been had he not died since they entered the White House. No doubt the President was reminded of the time the donkey got into the school house and they suspected everyone but him.

Mr. Coolidge didn't seem to take quite so much interest in the museum as he might have until they got to the fish. The aurora trout held him for several minutes. Calculating whether they would eat the kind of worms he uses to fish with, no doubt.

Mrs. Coolidge was animated about everything. She frequently asked questions and seemed to take the keenest delight in the work of the sculptors. Turning back to look the second time at a beautiful piece of Greek work she exclaimed:

"My, how beautiful. They must have worked!"

For the tour of the museum and block house Mrs. Coolidge changed from her red coat into a terra cotta suit, wearing the same hat and red shoes that she wore when she got off the train.

At the Founder's Day services the President's wife looked stunning. Any woman would have thought so. She wore a smart gown of blue georgette trimmed with velvet and a cocky brimmed felt hat that just matched her eyes. They seemed to melt into her personality.

With them she wore a charming neckpiece with yellow flowers pinned on it and the same pearl earrings and plain gold bracelet of the morning. Long white gloves covered her quiet hands. She has a habit of holding them in her lap so peacefully, the First Lady looks as though she hadn't a care in the world.

Her eyes followed her illustrious husband proudly and shone with love that she could not hide. She seemed to be following every word of the President as he read his message about the history of Pittsburgh and what its great citizens have accomplished.

Mr. President read his speech in a fascinating Massachusetts twang as natural as the hills and valleys in which he was raised. He was as unlike the average politician as day is different from night. One couldn't help wondering how such a quiet unassuming man ever dared to become President of these United States. His strength and talents are well hidden. Calvin Coolidge does not look like a great power. He is too human looking.

Mrs. Coolidge did the greeting and the smiling and the beaming yesterday, as she always does. She has the warm personality that is invaluable to the President in his trying job. When he gets too tired to smile, one can see how she is there to help him out. He, wholesome, friendly, good natured, loveable personality never fails her.

Many, many thousands more have seen them. Thousands of school children lined the streets and waved flags while their hearts fluttered at the thought that there, actually in front of their eyes, was the President! Hardened workmen cheered him from the minute he arrived, and blue-blooded aristocrats shook his hand and made him welcome.

And even if he doesn't "choose to run in 1928," now that Pittsburgh knows him personally, Pittsburgh likes him. And now that we know him well enough to like him personally, there are a great many who will be sorry that little word "chooses" has been so definitely defined.

U. S. Flyers Held by Bandits

MANAGUA, Nic., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Two American Marine Corps aviators who disappeared while on duty in Northern Nicaragua are believed to be held by bandits.

Second Lieutenant E. A. Thomas of Richmond, Ind., and Sergt. Frank E. Dowzell of Carbondale, Ind., were patroling the Quilali district in the department of Nueva Segovia when their machine crashed and burned near Mount Chipote.

The crew of another patrol plane said they saw both men run from the wreckage of the plane. Attempts to reach them, however, were frustrated when a rescue party was attacked by about 350 bandits.

In the severe fighting which followed four members of the Nicaraguan national guard were killed. The patrol cut its way out with difficulty, but was forced to return to Jicaro without locating the aviators. Further search by air was fruitless.

Admiral David F. Sellers, reporting to the Navy Department, said that between 25 and 50 members of the bandit gang were killed in the fight with the patrol seeking the missing aviators. He also reported that American marines in another action killed Santos Lobos, Nicaraguan bandit leader and seven of his men.

Shoots at "Glow" Thought Coyote, Kills Smoker

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Col., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Mistaking a burning cigaret for the eye of a coyote, Ollie McNeese, of this city, shot and killed an unidentified man on Elk Creek near New Castle, Col., last night.

The man was sitting on a log smoking a cigaret, McNeese told Sheriff George Winter. McNeese left the body in the woods and went to New Castle for aid.

SABBATH GROUP ELECTS CRAIG

By International News Service.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Oct. 14.—Philadelphia was chosen as the 1928 convention city at the closing session of the state Sabbath school convention here today.

P. L. Craig, of New Castle, was re-elected president for the ninth year.

H. E. Paisley, Pittsburgh, was named treasurer and the following vice presidents were re-elected: F. E. Parkhurst, Wilkes-Barre; Mrs. W. E. Easton, Stroudsburg; Mrs. John Boyd, Harrisburg; Charles Steele, Northumberland; H. C. Heckerman, Bedford; J. C. Silsley, Greensburg; Prof. O. R. Myers, Huntintgdon; John E. Person, Williamsport; J. W. Manon, Charleroi; Arthur P. Zuck, Erie; F. H. Stern, Pittsburgh; Bishop W. M. Bell, Harrisburg.

One new vice president was elected, R. E. English, Grove City.

Mrs. Barclay Warburton, Philadelphia; I. Harvey, Philadelphia, and J. W. Vickerman, Bellevue, were named members of the board.

Bronze medals were awarded 40 persons in recognition of their long service in Sunday school work. Mrs. Mary Behrens of Hazleton, with 69 years of service, had the longest record.

At the closing session a number of resolutions were adopted, one of which took a stand for strict law enforcement. Another urged all citizens to take an active interest in elections by being certain to vote.

QUEEN MAY VISIT CITY

Queen Marie of Rumania still hopes to visit Pittsburgh, and Mayor Charles H. Kline or one of his successors may yet carry out the elaborate arrangements he made last year to entertain her majesty of the Balkan kingdom.

This bit of royal gossip leaked out last night at the banquet tendered by the board of trustees of the Carnegie Institute to President and Mrs. Coolidge and a group of European diplomats, including his excellency George Cretziano, minister from Rumania, who told of the queen's desire to come here. The dinner, held in the $1,000,000 marble hall of the foyer of Carnegie Music Hall, was magnificent in its appointments and a fitting place, the guests thought, for the discussing of the comings and goings of royalty.

The dinner was the climax to the day made memorable by the visit of the President to the celebration of Funder's Day. The table was set in the center of the quadrangle formed by the great marble pillars of the foyer and there were seated 119 guests, including the members of the presidential party, the visiting diplomats and their wives, the trustees and a few other guests, including the local representatives in Congress.

Col. S. H. Church, president of the institute, presided. At his right hand sat the President, who was an interested listener to the addresses of the diplomats and Senator David A. Reed, but Mr. Coolidge did not speak. At Col. Church's left sat Mrs. Coolidge, gowned in red. Others at the speakers' table were Paul Claudel, the French ambassador; Edgar Prochnik, the Austrian minister; Secretary A. W. Mellon, Mme. Prochnik, Mrs. Church, Mrs. R. B. Mellon and Mayor Kline.

The Austrian minister praised the Carnegie Institute and declared that his studies in the Carnegie Library here years ago fitted him for his position in the diplomatic service. The speakers were Robert Silvercruys, Belgian charge d'affaires; Count Marchetti, counsellor of the Italian embassy; the French ambassador and J. H. van Royen, minister from the Netherlands.

VICTIM OF TRESTLE COLLAPSE HERE DIES

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 14.—Injuries suffered several months ago in the collapse of a trestle in Pittsburgh yesterday caused the death of Harry F. Seese, 32, Scalp Level, in Memorial Hospital here.

Mother Juror Faints As Son Is Sentenced

Picked on a jury called just before her only son was arraigned in Criminal Court for automobile thefts, Mrs. Anna Ingold, 1426 Rush street, North Side, today completed her two weeks of jury service by collapsing and being carried out of the courtroom as her 17-year-old boy was sentenced to a term of three to six months in the county jail by Judge James R. Macfarlane.

Tearfully she asked the judge to parole the boy. "He is my sole support," she pleaded. Judge Macfarlane declared that the offenses did not merit a parole.

Mrs. Ingold was widowed two years ago and has five daughters. Her son, Sam, was one of four Manchester youths involved in the thefts of seven automobiles in the Manchester district during September, and it was charged that they stripped the cars after joyriding in them. All entered pleas of guilty, obviating trial by jury, the next jury being that on which Mrs. Ingold was selected.

When it became known that her son was before the court Mrs. Ingold was excused from the jury to permit her to appear in his behalf. Friends of the family declare that the boy worked every day and spent his nights frequently at home, despite his connection with the gang, and many neighbors appeared to testify to his previous good reputation.

In the throng appearing before Judge Macfarlane were many relatives of the other boys, and the mother of John Wolford, 1414 Beaver avenue, also collapsed when sentence was pronounced. The other two defendants were Lloyd Johnson, 1753 Gironda street, and Bernard Ramsey, 1118 Manhattan street, declared to be the ringleader.

TELEPHONE TIP LEADS TO STILLS

Two 150-gallon stills in full operation were seized by a raiding squad under Police Captain Anthony Block today when an anonymous telephone call summoned officers to 1224 Liverpool street.

Rocco Carile, 32, of 1224 Liverpool street, who, police say, admitted ownership of the stills, but declared they were used to turn out liquor for personal consumption only, and Peter Spatro, 50, of 1218 Juniata street, were arrested and held over at hearings in the North Side Police Station.

Police say that when they reached the Liverpool street house they found the cellar doors wide open with the steam and fumes of the stills pouring forth, with no attempt being made to conceal the operations. Thirty-five gallons of moonshine and 75 barrels of mash also were confiscated.

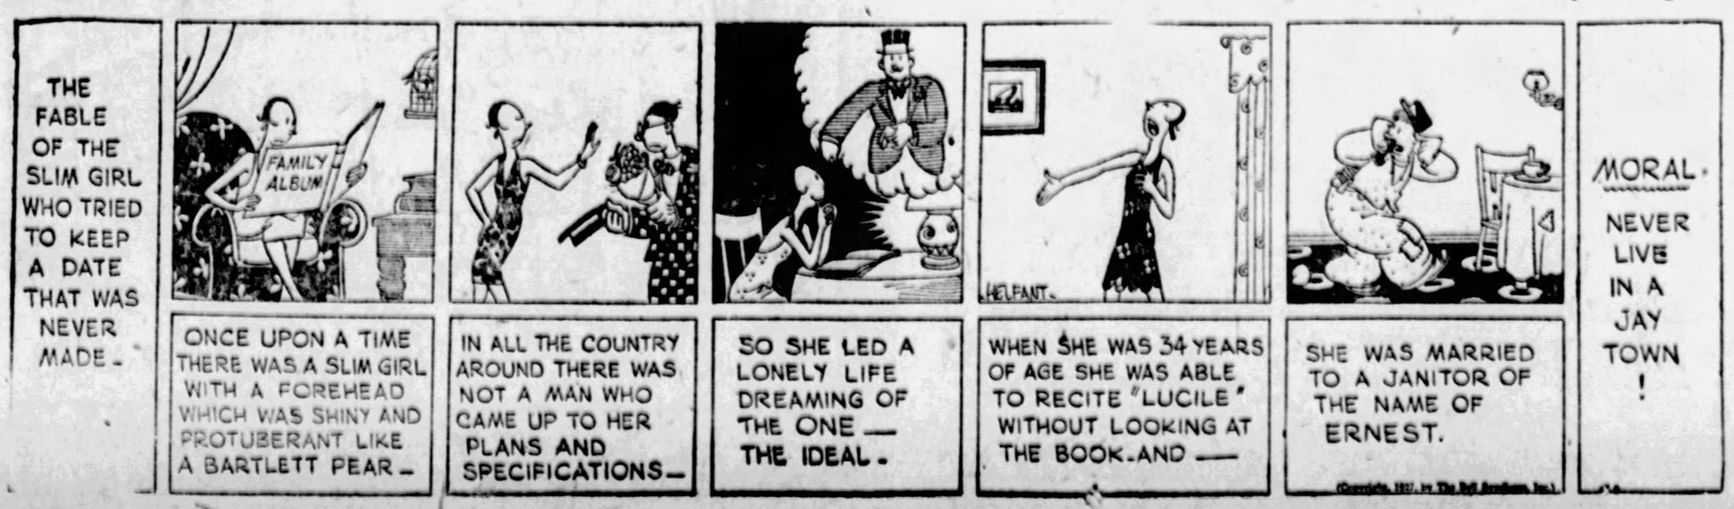
FABLES IN SLANG . . . . . By George Ade



BANKER KAHN IS OPTIMISTIC

Farmer Only One Out "In Cold," He Says

President Coolidge, when he said, "I do not choose to run," meant that he does not desire the nomination,

That is the opinion of Otto Kahn, international banker, expressed here last night after he had accompanied the President and Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon on a tour of Carnegie Institute.

"Do you consider the 'I don't choose statement of the President as final?" Mr. Kahn was asked.

"President Coolidge is the type of man who, having made up his mind, cannot be driven from his decision," he replied.

"And what is that decision?"

"... to run again in 1928 for the presidential nomination," said Kahn.

Mr. Kahn was extremely optimistic in regard to the business situation.

"The only problem that prevents general prosperity is the matter of the farmer," he said. "I hope very much that the next Congress with the co-operation of the business men will tackle that problem and give the farmer his fair share of the good things that have been going around.

"The characteristic of the present period of prosperity is that it has been widely spread and has not benefited only a limited number of well-to-do people. The country at large has had its share of prosperity, and business generally has had the good sense not to overdo it. There is every promise that business will continue satisfactorily in the near future."

Facing an era of unusual competition from Europe, Mr. Kahn expressed the opinion that there is no danger of any overt hostile move.

"We must keep our feet," he said, "and meet the increased competition sanely, as we have been doing."

The French tariff move, Mr. Kahn said, is not, in his opinion, a hostile gesture against the United States, but a move in the campaign of that country to get a fair share of American trade.

The possible "third term" of Mr. Coolidge was discussed frankly by the New York banker and art expert.

"My confidence in the American people tells me he is not the only man who could give the country a wise and sane administration," he said. "It would be a confession of American intellectual and political poverty if there was no other man who could be named by the Republican party."

A wise and sane tax revision is expected from the next Congress, Mr. Kahn said.

"If there is a surplus, the national debt should be reduced," he added. "The policy should be to balance the outgo and the income. If there should be a surplus it should be applied to reduction of the national debt."

With characteristic quickness of thought on national problems, Mr. Kahn, hurrying to dress for dinner last night, turned to the merchant marine.

"The government ought to get out of that business as soon as possible with due regard to the nation's policy to develop a merchant marine," he said.

Politics, merchant marine and business were not all Mr. Kahn discussed while he was here. During the tour of the International Exhibit in Carnegie Institute he revealed himself as one of the few present who could discuss intelligently the pictures there.

"The Italians are the best," he said, after looking over the galleries.

2 MEETINGS TO SPUR VOTE PROBE

Two meetings planned here will stimulate investigation into alleged election law violations, it is declared. One of the gatherings is a luncheon under the auspices of the County Elections Association and the other is a conference between District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner and a committee of five lawyers selected by the bar association to aid Gardner in his prosecutions.

The luncheon will be held in the William Penn Hotel at 12:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Arrangements are in charge of Grant Curry, president of the association, and Francis S. Guthrie, secretary. The conference likely will be held in the rooms of the bar association late this afternoon.

An order was made yesterday by Judge Ambrose B. Reid in Common Pleas Court, directing the sheriff to impound ballot boxes in the following districts: Twelfth of the Fourteenth Ward; Seventh of the Twentieth Ward and the Thirty-first of the Fourteenth Ward.

HIT, RUN AUTO VICTIM DIES

John Koebert, 75, of 615 Mellon street, died at Pittsburgh Hospital of injuries suffered last Friday when he was struck by a hit-and-run motorist at Highland avenue and Rodman street. A license number said to have been on the machine was taken by Charles A. Lightner, 1217 Jancey street, and turned over to highway police who traced it to a Bigelow boulevard supply company. Officials of the company, however, denied that such a number had been issued to them.

TWO WOMEN, ONE MAN FILE DIVORCE ACTIONS

The following libels in divorce were filed in Common Pleas Court before Judge Ambrose B. Reid: Buford Cowart against Elnora Cowart, Emma S. Wally against William C. Wally and Louise Fry against George M. Fry.

The Glove Mode

In Three Smart Types

Sporting gloves of pigskin with spear point stitching, or of goatskin, hand sewn embroidery. They are slip-ons slashed at the wrist and bound in darker leather. $5.00 and $5.50.

Pull-ons for dress—slender and stylish, in suede or doeskin. Some with pinked edges. $4.00.

Turn-back-cuffs on gloves of fine French kid. And such cuffs! Needlepoint...medallions of tiny appliqued flowers...clever rolls about the wrist...colorful embroidery. $3.50 to $8.00.

——Horne's, Main Floor——

Nocturne....

October's New Hosiery Shade

A hazy, misty, especially-for-autumn shade...not quite gray and not quite tan...just flatteringly shadowy! In a lovely silk-from-top to-toe stocking, $2.00.

——Horne's, Main Floor——

Beaded Bags, $5.00

Cut Steel or Rhinestone

Such adorable ones, made in France, of shining cut steel beads—or sparkling rhinestones with small pearls or colored stones. Perfect complements, in their gold and silver combinations, to the glitter of the evening mode.

Envelope or mounted styles with quaintly cubistic flowers, or quite conventional lined patterns. Some finished with beaded fringe.

——Horne's, Main Floor——

Dressy-Type Hats

$10.00

Of felt, with trimming of brilliant strass, velvet edgings, and lace veil trimmings—

Of black satin, made brilliant with silver embroidery, metal cloth, and rhinestone pins—

Of velvet, in black and color.

These hats, in brimmed and turban styles, include models for both young and older women, and are to be had in small and large head sizes.

A Men's Store Innovation

"Beaux Arts" Cravats Of Rich Imported Silks

Exclusive patterns...obtainable in only twelve men's shops in the entire country...in Pittsburgh only at Horne's.

The silks are made to order...in Switzerland, Australia, Italy, France, Germany and England...rich, luxurious patterns...but decidedly in good taste, and in colors that harmonize with new suit shades. Plain colors are shown.

The ties were made up in this country...entirely by hand ...with wool interlinings to minimize wrinkling and handsome crepe linings, to give them body. They're quite out-of-the-ordinary, $2.00, $3.00, $4.00 and $5.00.

Men's Flannelette Pajamas, $1.65

Heavy weight, exceptionally warm for winter wear, and in gaily colored blazer striped patterns. Sizes A, B, C, D.

———Horne's, Men's Store, Main Floor———

Men's Leather Jackets

The smartest leather jacket on the course is made of gray or sand suede, with cape-skin finish inside. Styled to give plenty of freedom to your stroke. Knit bottom and cuffs. Large pockets. Sizes 36 to 44. Suitable for motoring, hiking, skating and other outdoor sports, too. $22.50; others, $13.50 to $35.00.

———Horne's, Men's Floor———

Socket-Operated Radios

It's just a question of time when all radios will be socket-operated. There is no care necessary — no bother with batteries or eliminators — on the new-type sets. Simply put the plug into the electric light socket — that's all. The power simply is unfailing—your set has always the maximum volume for its needs.

See the newest types of radios at Horne's. Four different kinds of socket-operated sets — The Sparton, Radiolas, Stromberg-Carlson and the Steinite. Hear their wonderful tone.... see their simplicity of operation.

Socket-operated sets complete with speakers, from $189.00 to $1245.00.

ILEANA REPORTED ELOPED

MESSAGE SAYS PRINCESS AND OFFICER WED

By Universal Service.
Special Cable Dispatch.

VIENNA, Oct. 14.—Princess Ileana, the 19-year-old daughter of Queen Marie and the late King Ferdinand of Rumania, has eloped with one of her father's former aides de camp, according to a message received here from Bucharest.

Reports declare that Princess Ileana has been in love with the former aid secretly for some time, and the report of the elopement is quite precise, although the name of the dashing officer is nto given.

Princess Ileana, who accompanied her mother, Queen Marie, and her brother, Prince Nicholas, on the tour of America last year, is also well known in London and Paris social circles.

Two years ago it was rumored that Princess Ileana was engaged to marry King Boris of Bulgaria, the only remaining bachelor monarch of Europe, but at that time the report was denied by Queen Marie. It was later said that Princess Ileana had herself refused to become the Queen of Bulgaria.

HONOR DISCOVERER OF NEW WORLD

TRIBUTE TO COLUMBUS

One of the floats depicting the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus that were in the parade in his honor here on the anniversary of his discovery of the new world. The parade, which was routed through the North Side, downtown, Lawrenceville, East Liberty and Homewood districts was held under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Italian-American societies.

DEER GRAZE ON BUTLER TREASURER'S FARM DAILY

BUTLER, Pa., Oct. 14.—A pair of deer have taken a liking to the pasturage offered by County Treasurer George D. Smith's farm along the Slippery Rock road and appear there almost every evening to graze. This is taken as supporting the report of Joseph M. Curts, game protector, that deer will be plentiful in Butler county this season.

TWO-DAY RAINFALL ENDS GREENE COUNTY DROUGHT

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Oct. 14.—A two-day rainfall this week relieved Greene county of a threatened water shortage, which already had done much damage to late crops. In sections the shortage had become acute and farmers were compelled to haul water to their livestock.

DEDICATE CONNELLSVILLE WAR MEMORIAL SUNDAY

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 14.—A World War field piece, secured by South Connellsville firemen, will be dedicated at the South Connellsville public school, where it is to be mounted with the war honor roll Sunday. Congressman Samuel A. Kendall of Meyersdale and Attorney John Duggan will speak.

DIES AFTER FALL IN JAIL CELL

James A. Conley, 46, a former patrolman, of 2 Parris street died in the Allegheny General Hospital today. He was taken to the hospital from No. 1 Police Station October 12 and at the time was suffering from a severe laceration of the head. Police said this was received when he fell on the floor of his cell. Conley is said to have admitted the fall. He had been arrested the day before on complaint of his wife and was fined $100 in Morals Court.

DRINKS POISON, GIRL SAVED

A girl who said she was Marie Smith, 17, of 2829 Mayfield street, Cleveland, but later admitted this was an assumed name and that her home was in Carnegie, drank a small quantity of carbolic acid in Bedford avenue near the Rosella Foundling Home last night. She was given first aid at that institution and then taken to the Passavant Hospital, where it was found that while her lips were burned she was not in a dangerous condition. After she had been treated by Dr. Dorothy Rogers, of the hospital staff, she was turned over to the police of No. 2 station, who released her. She said she had a sister living in Pittsburgh.

Nightly Borrow Detectives Car, 4 Arrested

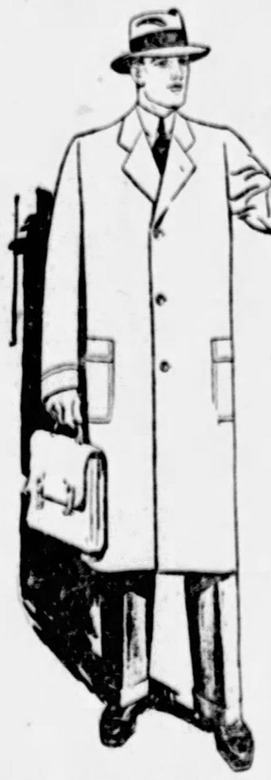
City Detective Patrick Emmett (Happy) Moran lost some of his serenity yesterday when he discovered that his new automobile was being used almost nightly by thieves, who "queered" themselves by stealing his horn, but he is happy enough now, having landed four suspects behind the bars.

The suspects are L. H. Koch, 20, of 1704 Brownsville road; Mike Gorman, 28, and his brother, Jack Gorman, 22, both of Howard street, and Henry Sperling, 20, of Dewey street. Koch is alleged to have had a duplicate key for Moran's car and is said to have gone joy-riding nearly every night in the machine.

RICHMAN'S CLOTHES

The clothes that made the $22.50 price mark famous—the first ready-to-wear clothes to be sold direct from the factory. Made in our own great tailor shops by stock-owning workers—sold under our own name and guarantee, through our own stores, Richman's Clothes have fairly won undisputed leadership in sales volume and value giving.

Good style is the outstanding feature of these new fall suits—each model bespeaks the artistry of master designers—and there are styles adapted to every taste and figure. Next, you will be impressed with the rich quality of the woolens—the bewildering variety of weaves, patterns and colorings. And finally, you will be agreeably surprised to see in these suits tailoring seldom matched at substantially higher prices—graceful lapels, collars and shoulders properly shaped—in fact, every point essential to correct fit, style, shape and long wear has been tailored with painstaking care.



Topcoats

The most comprehensive showing of fall topcoats in town, we believe—certainly the greatest selection ever offered at one price—smartly styled, comfortable, three and four-button models, Raglans with a swagger air, conservative Chesterfields, and our exclusive Chas. L. Richman model with the Legionaire collar—you'll find every good style represented in a complete range of sizes and proportions.

You must see and feel these woolens to fully appreciate their beauty and luxurious quality—Camel's-hair and velours, soft as velvet, rugged tweeds and twists in every preferred shade and colorful mixture—grays, tans, browns and blues—Skinner Satin lined, and honestly tailored to serve you faithfully through several seasons.

Extra Trousers $3, $4, $5 & $6

Richman's Clothes are always sold at one standard price—$22.50 for any suit, topcoat, or tuxedo suit—any style, fabric or size.

COOLIDGES BACK IN CAPITAL

ARRIVE HOME AFTER BUSY DAY HERE

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—President and Mrs. Coolidge returned from Pittsburgh at 7:30 o'clock this morning and went immediately to the White House for breakfast.

Pittsburgh's honor guests, President Calvin Coolidge, members of his cabinet and the foreign diplomats who came here yesterday for the Founder's Day exercises at Carnegie Institute of Technology, left the city in the President's special train at 10:20 o'clock last night.

It was a strenuous day for the President and his party and everyone was tired after the series of sightseeing tours, receptions, breakfasts, luncheons and dinners which occupied their time from their arrival at 7:30 yesterday morning.

The President stood on the observation platform of his special until it was out of sight. He waved goodby to a group of workmen in the East Liberty Station and remained on the platform until the train was lost in the darkness.

Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon accompanied the party on its return to the capital. Secretary of Labor J. J. Davis was the only member of the cabinet who remained here. He left for Sharon this morning to visit his father, who is ill.

Will Bets G. O. P. Is Just What Reed Said.

WILL ROGERS.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 14.—Say, did you read this morning what Jim Reed called the Republicans? Why, you would think if they had any pride at all they could come out and deny it. I guess they would if they could.

It took Missouri seven years to find out that Jim was right. I hope the nation can catch on quicker than that. I would love to see Jim in that White House. He sure would have some of those old rich boys going in and bringing sticks out of the water for him.

WILL ROGERS.

P. S.—I only got one more bet to make and then I'm through. I'll bet one million dollars everything Jim said about the Republicans was true.

FIND MAN'S CLOTHING IN BURNING AUTO

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Oct. 14.—This city's latest mystery concerned the finding of an abandoned burning automobile containing a man's blood-stained underclothing. The machine was found in a garbage dump near the city limits by Edward Bean, nearby farmer. Investigation thus far has been fruitless.

FORCED TO OPEN SAFE AT GUN'S POINT

With a revolver pressed against his ribs, R. G. Von Ende, 521 South Lang avenue, attendant at the Atlantic service station, 707 Pennwood avenue, Wilkinsburg, complied with a robber's command that he open the office safe. The thief obtained $90 and escaped. Von Ende and Harry Olsen, 308 Darragh street, were in the station at 11 o'clock last night when the holdup man entered with a drawn revolver. He lost no time in subduing the two attendants and compelled Von Ende to open the safe.

H. T. Sidaway, 1507 Center street, Wilkinsburg, reported to the police of that borough that while ascending the Elm street (Wilkinsburg) steps at 12:30 o'clock this morning two young bandits held him up, took his watch and chain, scarpin, Masonic charm and $25.

RULE GRANTED ON DRY CHIEF FOR AUTO RETURN

A rule was granted yesterday in the United States District Court upon Prohibitional Administrator John D. Pennington to show cause why an automobile in possession of the prohibition authorities should not be returned to Theodore Harris, 2930 Webster avenue. Harris charged it was removed from in front of his house by unknown persons on September 17 and after notifying the police of the disappearance of the car learned it was being held by the prohibition authorities.

Swansdown Flavor is Always Uniform

SCIENTIFIC methods determine in advance SWANSDOWN'S uniformly fragrant bouquet and rich abundant flavor.

The four fine grades of coffee beans used in SWANSDOWN are first washed; then all broken, "crippled" beans are floated off so that the mellow, full-bodied flavor remains unimpaired.

The selected berries are then blended into one-dized, secret formula which produces a smooth, delicious coffee of perfectly balanced qualities.

SWANSDOWN is then ready to be served in your home. A meal is only as good as its coffee.

AVOID DIZZY SPELLS

Never well. Always tired and fagged out. Beauty tossed away by neglect. To be beautiful and to keep youth the system must be free from poisonous backwash of constipation, which often causes dizzy spells. For 20 years, Dr. F. M. Edwards gave his patients, in place of calomel, a compound of vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Known by their olive color. They free the system of poisons that ravage health, energy, beauty.

You need never have sallow complexion, dull eyes, coated tongue, throbbing headaches—all signs that your bowels are clogged, liver is torpid. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly. They act smoothly and without griping. How much better you'll feel and look! Everywhere wise men and women who know the value of good health take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. All druggists, 15c, 30c and 60c.

Doctors call it "cachexia" that ill health and malnutrition commonly called "run-down condition"

When cachexia, as frequently happens, is due entirely to the absence of a certain vital dietary factor, yeast is the food to eat. In all such cases, yeast quickens the appetite, improves the digestion and enables you to get strength, energy and endurance from the food you eat. Like the spark for the gasoline in your motor.

Yeast is far-famed as a tonic, regulator and general conditioner. And now, in Yeast Foam Tablets, you can get pure yeast in a form you'll like. Easy to swallow, pleasant to chew like candy. Try them just once, and you'll see.

How to Care For Varicose or Swollen Veins

Rub Gently Upward and Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give you is to ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that even Piles are quickly absorbed. Any one who is disappointed with its use can have their money refunded. MISS ELDER MAKES OVER-WATER FLIGHT RECORD

PLANE IN AIR MORE THAN 41 HOURS

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—A new over-water distance flying record was established by Ruth Elder and Capt. George Haldeman before they were forced down in the Atlantic on their attempted flight to Paris. It was the longest flight ever made by a woman.

The previous record for over-ocean flying, made by Lieuts. Maitland and Hegenberger on their jump from San Francisco to Honolulu, was 2,434 miles. Computations of the flight of the American Girl make its distance about 2,625 miles.

As figured by Lieut. Earle H. Kincaide of the Navy hydrographic office for the New York Times, the American Girl flew 2,623 miles. Computations by H. Armand de Mas, telegraph editor and aviation expert of the New York Daily News, are that the distance was 2,625 miles.

Masi figures the plane landed 1,208 miles southeast of Paris, its objective. Winds apparently had driven the American Girl far off the course it charted over the New York to Paris steamship lane 845 miles to the northward. The computations are based on the postion of the rescuing ship, the tanker Barendreecht, 44.34 north and 21.39 east, or 633 miles due west of the nearest mainland, Cape Finisterre, Spain.

Charles A. Lindbergh in his nonstop flight from New York to Paris covered 3,610 miles in 33 hours and 30 minutes.

Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine flew from New York to Eisleben, Germany, 3,905 miles, in 46 hours and 30 minutes.

Commander Byrd and his crew covered 3,477 miles in 41 hours and 27 minutes in their flight from New York to Ver Sur Mer, France.

Those three flights, however, were on a northern course involving land over which the American Girl did not pass.

Lindbergh, Chamberlin and Byrd completed over-water jumps of 1,900 miles from Newfoundland to Ireland in their flights to Europe.

Presumably the American Girl was in the air 41 hours 26 minutes. A dispatch from the captain of the steamship Barendrecht said the plane landed at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday. This probably was an error and Thursday was meant. The dispatch did not identify the time zone of the 10:30 a. m., but presumably it was eastern standard time, for the dispatch said the plane had encountered a storm at 6 p. m., eastern standard time, which lasted till 2 a. m. This would make the plane average only a little over 65 miles an hour, but deviation from course because of storms might account for the small average. The distance covered was computed as on a great circle course.

WATCHES BEAVERS SIX WEEKS FOR SPEECH DATA

The first of a series of popular lectures sponsored by the Westinghouse Club will be given tonight in the club's headquarters, Pennwood avenue, Wilkinsburg, by Norman McClintock, naturalist, on "The Ways of the Beavers." Mr. McClintock is said to have spent every night for six weeks in succession in watching beavers at work to procure accurate data.

Mack, 356-Pound Film Comedian, Dies

By Universal Service.

SANTA MONICA, Oct. 13.—Hughie Mack, stage actor and pioneer film player, who weighed 356 pounds, was found dead in bed yesterday, by his wife, police reported. Death was ascribed to heart disease.

The actor was born in Brooklyn, 43 years ago, and began his stage career in that city. He came to California 15 years ago, being one of the first of the stage actors who transferred their allegiance to the screen.

Mack played in pictures with John Bunny and Flora Finch in the old days. Recently he had important roles in such films as "Ben-Hur," "Greed," "The Merry Widow," and "Mare Nostrum."

He was scheduled to begin work in Emil Jannings' latest picture in a few days.

Mack was prominent in the work of the Elks, and the funeral will be under the auspices of that organization.

He leaves a widow and three children.

7 COAL AND IRON POLICE HELD

Charged with aggravated assault and battery, seven coal and iron policemen employed by the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, were arrested last night in connection with an alleged beating given five Castle Shannon youths, four of whom were striking coal miner pickets. The defendants waived hearings for court and bail bonds amounting to $15,000 were posted for them.

The officers arrested were James Crowthers, W. R. Beck, Robert Freeman, B. E. Hart, S. T. Lovechick, E. J. Kovalick and P. J. Casey. The five men alleged to have been beaten were arraigned before Justice of the Peace Ira H. Edmundson of Mt. Lebanon and fined $5 each on charges of disorderly conduct.

DR. T. H. SNOWWHITE HEADS BRADDOCK C. OF C.

Officers were elected yesterday by the Braddock Chamber of Commerce and they will be inaugurated at the annual banquet in the B. P. O. Elks club rooms next Thursday night. They are Dr. Thomas H. Snowwhite, president; O. J. H. Hartauff, first vice president; M. Goldsmith, second vice president; Edward McCurdy and W. A. Kulp, third and fourth vice presidents; C. L. Masters, treasurer, and T. A. Haish, secretary.

This is the "last day" Furniture Fair special and the value cannot be duplicated after Saturday.

President's Address Tribute to City

The Founder's Day address of President Coolidge yesterday is regarded by the trustees of the Carnegie Institute as one of the most eloquent tributes ever paid to Pittsburgh. At the same time it ranks as the shortest formal speech in the history of the institute's celebrations.

The President was tired when he rose to speak and this fact was obvious in the huskiness of his voice. The audience that packed every corner of the Carnegie Music Hall listened eagerly for every word that fell from his lips, and the only vigorous applause during the afternoon was in appreciation of his sentiments praising the work of the founders of the city.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge appeared bored by the delay after their reception in the founder's room when they were standing in the hall of architecture under the glare of arc lights for motion picture photographs with the members of the board of trustees and other local dignitaries. When the photographers tried a "close up" Mrs. Coolidge stepped out of the group. There was no embarrassment, however, for at that moment a fuse blew out and the picture-taking ended.

An organ prelude by Dr. Charles Heinroth, an invocation by the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers and a selection by a vocal quartet were the introductory numbers on the program. The President spoke, there was another selection by the quartet and the announcement of awards in the international exhibition closed the exercises.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge with the members of the White House staff returned to the R. B. Mellon residence while other members of the party returned to their respective homes to dress for the trustees' dinner. It was 5 o'clock when the President reached his host's residence and he at once retired for a two-hour nap.

CHURCHES AND SCHOOLS TO AID "BUNDLE WEEK"

Churches throughout the city and county, as well as schools, will cooperate with the Pittsburgh Association for the Improvement of the Poor in its annual bundle week, scheduled for October 24 to 31, according to announcement by H. W. Sheppard, assistant general manager. The purpose of the drive is to prepare the association for the winter needs of the city's poor.

GREEN STAYS AT LABOR HELM

By Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14—President William Green, Secretary Frank Morrison and all other national officers of the American Federation of Labor were re-elected at the national convention yesterday. The convention voted to hold its next session at New Orleans in November, 1928.

There were no contests in the election of officers.

The convention went on record in favor of Philippine independence and against admission of all Asiatics to the United States. It was indicated that the main issue in the Asiatic question was the filtering of Filipino laborers into this country.

The Fascist movement in the United States was the subject of warm addresses on the floor of the convention.

BUILDER INVESTS IN SHALER FOR DEVELOPMENT

James H. Hamnett, a builder, has purchased from the Adam Braun estate 6.72 acres along the Butler pike, Shaler township, for $16,500. It is understood that the buyer plans a new development on the property.

A brick apartment building on the south side of Fair Oaks street, near Wightman street, Fourteenth Ward, has been transferred from the Beverly Land Company to Herbert A. Reed at private terms. The lot is 50x153 feet. The building is known as the former S. B. Martin property.

A house in Gettysburg street, Fourteenth Ward, has been sold by James A. Coulson to Joseph W. Simon for $13,000. The lot is 32x140 feet.

In Sheffield street, Twenty-first Ward, Felix J. Semask sold to Joseph Barad 60x125 feet at private terms. Mr. Barad conveyed it to Elizabeth P. Russ for $12,500.

A property in Lea street, Mifflin township, lot 26x108 feet, has been sold by J. T. Potts to Stephen Salance for $12,500.

A brick and shingle dwelling in Sampson avenue, Ingram, lot 32x109 feet, has been sold by Dilworth Kennedy to Ida M. Wonderly at private terms.

The Stewart Avenue Evangelical Lutheran Church has filed plans with the Bureau of Building Inspection for an addition at 2814 Brownsville road, Carrick, to cost $50,000.

Other permit applications include:

Nineteenth Ward—P. Reisch, two brick and shingle dwellings, 1129-1529 Woodmere avenue, $12,000; E. E. May, brick dwelling, 720 Rosemere avenue, $4,800.

Twenty-seventh Ward—Mrs. Mary Muller, brick and tile dwelling, 3500 California avenue, $8,500; J. C. Nock, brick dwelling, 2801 Brighton road, $8,500.

SALE OF ASSETS FOUGHT

Testimony was taken before Judge John A. Evans in Common Pleas Court on the application of the Thomas Cronin Company to prevent the sale of the assets of that concern on the ground that the company is solvent. More than $200,000 is involved, the Cronin concern seeking to prevent the receivers from selling the assets for $100,000. Judge Evans asked both sides to submit briefs and will render a decision later. The company has the contract for the building of the Mt. Washington roadway.

Getting Skinnier Every Day

Hollows in Cheeks, Neck and Chest Growing Deeper Every Week

Someone Ought to Tell Him How to Gain Pounds of Solid Flesh and Look Like a Real Man

Tens of thousands of thin, run-down men—yes, and women too—are getting discouraged—are giving up all hope of ever being able to take on flesh and look healthy and strong.

All such people can stop worrying and start to smile and enjoy life right now, for McCoy's Tablets, which any druggist will tell you all about, is putting flesh on hosts of skinny folks every day.

One woman, tired, weak and discouraged, put on 15 pounds in five weeks and now feels fine.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

The name McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets has been shortened—just ask for McCoy's Tablets at May's Drug Stores or any drug store in America.

Magnesia Best for Your Indigestion

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gas, sourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestants, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and make digestion easy. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

HALT JAWORSKI RETURN

SUBSTANTIATE JAIL BREAK ALIBI

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 14.—Efforts of Detroit police to return Sam Jaworski to Pittsburgh were delayed temporarily today after 19 persons objected to extradition papers on the ground that they knew that he was in Hamtramck, a Polish suburb, at the time of his brother's escape from the Allegheny county jail.

Sam has been identified by Pittsburgh jail officers as the man who brought to his brother Paul two revolvers with which the latter blazed his way out of jail, where he awaited execution as a slayer.

Sam was arrested here with Harry Watson as a holdup suspect. Watson also was believed implicated in Paul's break.

Detective John Geisler, of the Pittsburgh police, said that it would be shown that at least eight of the 19 alibi witnesses had police records.

BULLET-RIDDLED AUTO FOUND

An automobile, believed to be the one in which two burglars twice rode through bullet barrages on the North Side early yesterday, was found abandoned last night in Susquehanna street. There were six bullet holes through the windshield and back of the machine.

The automobile on which police fired was used by burglars who attempted to rob the Teufel men's furnishing store, 821 East Ohio street. Two squads of patrolmen chased it at different times but it eluded both. One of the burglars is believed to have been wounded.

Demands Service From Police, He Gets It

The City Detective Bureau rendered first-class service yesterday afternoon when Elmer Meissner, 34, of Penn avenue, an alleged bad check passer, walked into headquarters and demanded attention.

"I want service," demanded Meissner. "I want John Morgan or Inspector Clyde S. Ebeburn to lock me up. They handled all my arrests before and did a good job."

He got what he wanted. Detectives say he has about $200 worth of bad checks out at present and has served time for similar offenses.

Troublesome Dogs Get Owner Into Trouble

A warrant charging Mrs. Sarah Glazer, of 1919 Webster avenue, with harboring ferocious dogs, was sworn out today after she had forfeited $30 by failing to appear in Morals Court to answer disorderly conduct charges, preferred after her dogs are said to have bitten two women and a policeman.

It was testified the animals bit Miss Ruth Kalson, 21, of 1 Davenport street and Mrs. Tillie Miller, 23, of 211 Devilliers street, yesterday. They reported the matter to police and when the officers went to the Glazer home to request Mrs. Glazer to keep the dogs tied for 10 days, they say, she became abusive ending by ordering her daughter, Mary, 21, to turn the dogs loose. The animals attacked Wagonman Paul Jovanovic, attached to the Center Avenue Police Station, biting him on the thigh and leg and Mrs. Glazer then was placed under arrest.

Those bitten were treated at Passavant Hospital. Mary, in Morals Court today, denied her mother had told her to loose the dogs.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. It costs only 75 cents. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

Listen on the radio to a prize-fight. You get excited when your favorite is weakening. Ever get excited when your punch is losing its power? You feel your weakness in many ways—yet don't suspect the reason. Perhaps you have dizzy, nervous spells, headaches, lack of appetite or other slight attacks and laugh them off. You sure would get excited if an examination showed these were symptoms of oncoming System Poisoning—that weakening disease doctors call "TOXEMIA." Why risk losing your punch—your power of endurance—when by taking Partola you can cleanse your bowel and system of poison wastes that cause so much sickness. Ordinary laxative pills and waters don't dislodge the bacteria that cause this strength sapping malady. Partola is an internal antiseptic and laxative that cleans out the poisons, leaves you bright eyed, full of pep and bubbling over with health and strength. All good druggists sell regular box of Partola 30¢, double size 50¢.

M'GOVERN SPLITS DEMOCRATS

HUMES, GUTHRIE BOLT TO BACK INDEPENDENT

The independent fight started by Controller C. C. McGovern has resulted in an open break in the Democratic ranks that may be carried into the election of delegates to the national convention of that party next year.

Two Democratic leaders with independent leanings have bolted their party to support McGovern and George B. Shields for county commissioners instead of James Houlahen and P. F. Brennan, the minority party nominees. They are former United States Attorney E. Lowry Humes and Francis S. Guthrie.

Both Houlahen and Brennan were delegates to the last Democratic national convention and voted and worked for the nomination of Gov. Smith of New York. The elimination of Houlahen by the independents of his own and the Republican party not only will take the minority place on the board of commissioners away from the Democrats but will be a slap at the Democratic wing here supporting Gov. Smith.

NUTS SCARCE IN WOODS, SQUIRRELS INVADE TOWN

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Oct. 14.—Like Browning's town of Hamelin, which was overrun with rats, Waynesburg is overrun by squirrels. Due to the scarcity of nuts and other food in the woods this fall the squirrels have made raids on gardens and in some cases have ventured into houses for food.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.
U.S. Senator from New York

Headache and Some of the Many Causes of It

A FEW days ago I told about a fine old man, 98 years of age, who said he hadn't had a headache for 50 years. This is a remarkable experience and worthy of comment.

DR. COPELAND

Some persons are rarely free from headache. Some have the symptoms every Sunday. Others have it periodically, perhaps once a month.

The brain is the presiding organ, the most important of all our parts. It sits enthroned in a bony temple, the skull. It has charge of the nervous system and, through it, of every part of the body.

You are familiar with the exacting duties of a train dispatcher. He sits in his office and directs the movement of every engine on his division. He is the absolute dictator of the railroad traffic.

In a similar way, the brain presides over the activities of the body and its organs. It directs the forces having to do with life.

An organ so important must be guarded against all harm. On this account the hard skull was provided. But the brain has more covering than this. It is encased in a tough, fibrous jacket, which in turn covers a delicate membrane, immediately in contact with the brain.

These coverings are known as the "meninges." An inflammation of this region is called "meningitis." Fortunately, this disease is not common, and it is not common because the brain and its membranes are so carefully protected.

One of the chief features of the meninges is the richness of the blood supply. There are many, many blood vessels.

Anything that sends too much blood to the brain causes the vessels to be crowded with blood. The parts become congested. Then there will be headache.

This particular variety is called a "congestive headache." The face and eyes are red. The head feels swollen as if it would burst. There are throbbing pains, made worse by every step or jar. Bright lights and noises increase the agony. Life seems hardly worth living.

Full-blooded persons or those who have high blood pressure are particularly liable to have congestive headaches. You see it takes only a little extra blood to crowd the already well-filled vessels.

Overexertion, too long exposure to the sun and indiscretions in eating or drinking are among the causes of this kind of headache. Overfed persons are particularly subject to this form.

It is very important to do away with any article of dress which interferes with the return of the blood from the head. Tight collars and neckbands which hug the throat should be removed. In the old days of tight corsets, congestive headaches were more common than they are with the more sensible dressing of today.

Firm pressure of a tight bandage around the head sometimes relieves this headache. It is worth trying.

To empty the bowels and cut down on the food are good things to do. Cold compresses, a cool, dark room and perfect quiet help a lot.

Men's "Collegiate" Hats At a Standard Low Price, 5.00

A man couldn't choose a better hat, he couldn't want a more style-ful hat than one of the new Fall "Collegiates." Made exclusively for Kaufmann's in Pittsburgh by one of the country's finest makers, they embody every quality expected of hats priced far higher.

Particularly smart are the new pearl grey snap brims we have lately received and, as you know, pearl grey is a shade that will go far this season. The pert snap brim style finds favor with many men—the curl brim is preferred by those who want a more tailored type.

Interesting and well priced displays of other fine brands are also awaiting to-morrow's choosers here. Of especial note are new "Cavaliers," sold exclusively at Kaufmann's—priced uniformly, 6.50.

Men Will Choose "Vassar" Medium Weight Underwear, 2.00

Chilly Fall days make the need of warmer underwear almost urgent and the men who fit their underclothing to the weather will be choosing from this "Vassar" showing. Light enough in weight to make the change hardly noticed by the wearer, yet comfortably warm on unusually cold days.

Made of fine combed long staple cotton, knitted and cut to conform to your body's outlines and to fit perfectly. Choice of long or short sleeves, ankle lengths—regular and stout sizes—closed crotch and one-button back style. These "Vassar" union suits will fit nicely the first time you wear them, and ever after. Sizes from 34 to 50.

(The Store for Men—Main Floor)

Men's "Arch-Grip" Oxfords for Comfort and Service, 6.75

Fast becoming one of the most popular brands in the city—and meriting its popularity with a full measure of worth. Styled carefully, made skillfully—priced exceptionally low. A favorite model is the "Gridiron"—made of imported black or tan Scotch grain leather and having double soles as further surety of service.

Black or Beige—Most Important In New Winter Coats!

Black—With the depth and softness of midnight shadows—or regal black with all the dignity and resplendence of proverbial ebony.

Beige—Soft warm tones of beige that are so kind to blondes or brunettes. Beige that hints of the golden, or with a rosy note.

But black or beige your new Fall coat simply must be. Paris says so! And they are practical as well as smart, for frocks of almost any color can be worn with either a black or beige coat. Or your hat may be pertly bright, merely adding to the attractiveness.

Furs Speak Luxury

Even the most modestly priced coats are rich in furs. You can bury your chin in deep shawl collars. And some of the fur cuffs reach to the elbow! Wide bands of fur encircle the bottoms of many of the coats. In the group you'll find red fox (and, by the way, red fox on a black coat is decidedly all right!), grey kid, platinum wolf, raccoon wolf, beaver, sable fitch—and others.

And you should see the new tricks in slenderizing lines! Geometric lines that take pounds off the silhouette—tiny tucks—clever stitching—skillful seaming. All that art and skill can produce. All that the fashion-wise could wish. At six low prices:

The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson

Woodrow Wilson's First Public Speech a Failure

He Dislikes Teaching Women, but The Byrn Mawr Salary of $1,500 Is Needed—Wilson Becomes a Father

It was the mystic faith of the War President that "When ready, the call comes." This was revealed in yesterday's installment of "The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson" in the Sun-Telegraph. How thoroughly he prepared for 54 years was clearly set forth, thus explaining how it was that Wilson was equipped to take up the duties of the Presidency and carry through in the greatest war of all time.

By RAY STANNARD BAKER

Copyright, 1927, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

Wilson's First Public Speech

WILSON has had tentative offers from other institutions, Tulane and Michigan Universities, besides the Bryn Mawr offer. His "Congressional Government" has made a real impression in the academic world, and he can remain at Hopkins, but at a salary upon which he cannot possibly marry. He has summed up the whole matter in a letter to Ellen Axson:

". . . at Bryn Mawr I should probably receive a very comfortable salary (I am prepared to refuse anything less than $2,000); should have more leisure than here or elsewhere for private study; should have opportunities to lecture in Philadelphia and eventually here (if Dr. Adams' plans and promises are made in good faith); should have leisure to learn how to teach before seeking a more conspicuous place where the conditions of work might be less favorable; and should have plenty of congenial work. It is not my purpose, you know, my darling, to spend my life in teaching. It is my purpose to get a start in the literary work which cannot at first bring one in a living. I should, of course, prefer to teach young men—and if I find that teaching at Bryn Mawr stands in the way of my teaching afterward in some man's college, I shall, of course, withdraw. But Dr. Adams did exactly the same thing before coming here—he was first of all professor at just such an institution, Smith College in Massachusetts—and besides, beggars cannot be choosers . . . The question as to whether it will be agreeable or not I leave out altogether. I could do my duty fully without fretting, provided my ultimate object is not interfered with or postponed meanwhile.

The Salary Question

"I intend to call on Miss Thomas tomorrow morning for the single object of telling her just the lines in which I purpose doing my best, my special work, and if she thinks my purposes in any degree incompatible with the work that will be expected of me at Bryn Mawr, she can prevent my appointment.

"My anxiety to do what is best in this matter has cost me both sleep and ease of mind. I have not attempted to argue away your objections; they stand with a force of their own whatever is said. I have merely desired to point out other considerations which to a certain extent—perhaps altogether—counterbalance them. And if my darling, after further consideration, continues to think that the position I have consented to seek is one which she should be sorry to have me accept, I will at once and without hesitation withdraw from the candidacy. I will not take, contrary to her choice and judgment, this first step that we shall take together!"

He is shocked and downcast a few days later to find that the salary he is to be offered is not $2,000, but only $1,200. Can two live on any such starving income? It would leave "absolutely no margin on which I could collect a small library and make our escape from B. M. in the summers." He is vastly cast down.

At length, on January 13, 1885, he can write exultantly to Ellen Axson: . . . "I have heard from Bryn Mawr, little lady! I have been elected 'associate' in history for two years at $1,500 a year. This is the lowest rank, and men who are no older than I, but who have received their degrees and had a single year's experience in teaching, are put in the grade above; but I have no substantial ground for objecting to that. There will be no real subordination. 'Associate' means nothing. There is to be but one instructor in history and he is to be the head of the department, of course. . . . You have the first right to be consulted and your judgment in the matter is more vital to me than anyone else's can be. Would you be altogether satisfied to have me accept? . . . Tell me without reserve exactly what you think." . . .

The "Great Adventure"

Can they live on any such salary? He is desperately worried about it, rails against boarding house keepers who charge $10 a week for one and wonders if that means $20 for two.

At length it is settled: they decide to make the great adventure. He writes on January 29, 1885:

"Dr. Rhoads' reply to my letter of acceptance reached me on Tuesday and contains this very cordial opening passage: 'Thine of the 24th, with its enclosure, is at hand and I am truly glad thou hast decided to come to Bryn Mawr. I trust it will prove no less advantageous to thyself than to us.'"

He takes the first opportunity to visit Bryn Mawr and to interview boarding house keepers—in all his innocence and inexperience. He writes to his fiancee:

"I had a rather amusing visit to Mrs. Hawkins' house at Bryn Mawr, my pet; she charges enormous prices with such assurance. The view of the case that must comfort you, and silence your unselfish objections, is that it would cost one person almost as much for board there as it would cost two. It pleases Mrs. H. to charge $10 apiece for two and 'about $15' for one!"

He hears also from his father to whom, as always, he has written as to some oracle, for advice. He quotes his father's delphic response:

"'Hasten slowly. A year or so at Bryn Mawr will be nothing lost.'"

With these questionings and perturbations of mind the problem is finally settled; and in the fall the young people, with scarcely a cent to their names, but ardently in love and full of aspiration, having read Browning and Wordsworth and discussed Bagehot and Burke during a good part of the summer, begin their life career together.

Solace in Authorship

In spite of the eager energy which he applied to the new work, in spite of the complete happiness of his married life at Bryn Mawr College, it was not long before Woodrow Wilson's impatient and ambitious spirit began to chafe at the limitations of his surroundings. His aspirations reached the stars and he was held at every point. It began to be more and more irksome to him to teach women, to say nothing of being directed by a woman. For Dean Thomas, with all her brilliance and her genius, proved to be difficult to work with. Moreover, the salary he received, barely enough for two to live on, promised to fall hopelessly short when there were three. Mrs. Wilson was ill and he must watch over her and care for her.

"He takes such care of me," she wrote, "and I who had meant to do so much for him."

Wilson's invariable way of meeting difficulty or discouragement was with work—work. He began writing again furiously, finding solace in his own deeply loved subjects. He had had considerable encouragement from his publishers in Boston and he soon completed a brilliant essay on "Responsible Government Under the Constitution," published in the "Atlantic Monthly" of April, 1886, in which he further developed ideas already set forth in "Congressional Government." It showed that he had a keen eye on Grover Cleveland, whom he aptly characterized as "clear-headed, methodical, unimaginative," and he revealed vividly where his heart was by concluding with an impassioned appeal for "legislative reform."

Gibes From Depew

His imprisoned spirit longs for the great world, the heat of battle. In March, 1886, his friend Bridges tempts him over to New York to speak for the first time before a Princeton alumni gathering. He hesitates at first about going—the cost of it—and then accepts eagerly. Who knows what may come out of such contacts? Possibly a chance at Princeton! Chauncey Depew is to be there and other notables. He can try his oratorical wings in new airs. He prepares feverishly—he overprepared—and when the times comes he makes a serious address on "The College and the Government"—always with him a favorite theme. One who was there thus described it:

"It was very carefully prepared, well written, awfully solemn." Henry Van Dyke has recorded, "and nearly an hour long . . . Wilson was so in earnest—he wanted so much to say what he had prepared—that he could not stop in spite of the interruptions—in spite of the men going out—he just simply went ahead to the bitter end and finished it up."

Depew, following him, poked good-humored fun at the deadly seriousness of the young professor. It cut him to the quick. He considered it a far worse failure than it really was, and did not recover for years from the chagrin of it. He felt that one of the possible doors of his liberation—by way of the oratory to which he had given so much labor—was definitely closed. It can be imagined what such a failure meant to a man of Wilson's temperament! It was the only time in his entire career that an audience laughed at him.

Hunting a Post

But the defeat only drove him to new effort. Two weeks after he went to Washington to see his old friend and former law partner, Renick. Renick had intimated that Wilson might find a place in the Department of State where he could have greater freedom in looking into the "inside of the Government." They visited various bureau chiefs—found several who had been interested in "Congressional Government"—but no place for an impecunious young professor without so much as a single political acquaintance to give him a standing with the administration! With his head full of the great affairs of parliaments and an ambition to be the "Senator from Virginia," little did he know—then!—of the fierce struggle going on for every office that paid even an unlivable salary in a new Democratic administration. One significant thing he did on this trip: he visited Congress—about which he had been writing so shrewdly for so long—for the first time.

"About 2 I went up to the Capitol," he wrote to his wife, "and watched the House and the Supreme Court until time to come away to my train (the Senate was in 'Executive Session')" . . .

Another great event served also to occupy his mind. Here is his account of it in a letter to Robert Bridges:

"Bryn Mawr, Pa.,
"19 April, 1886.

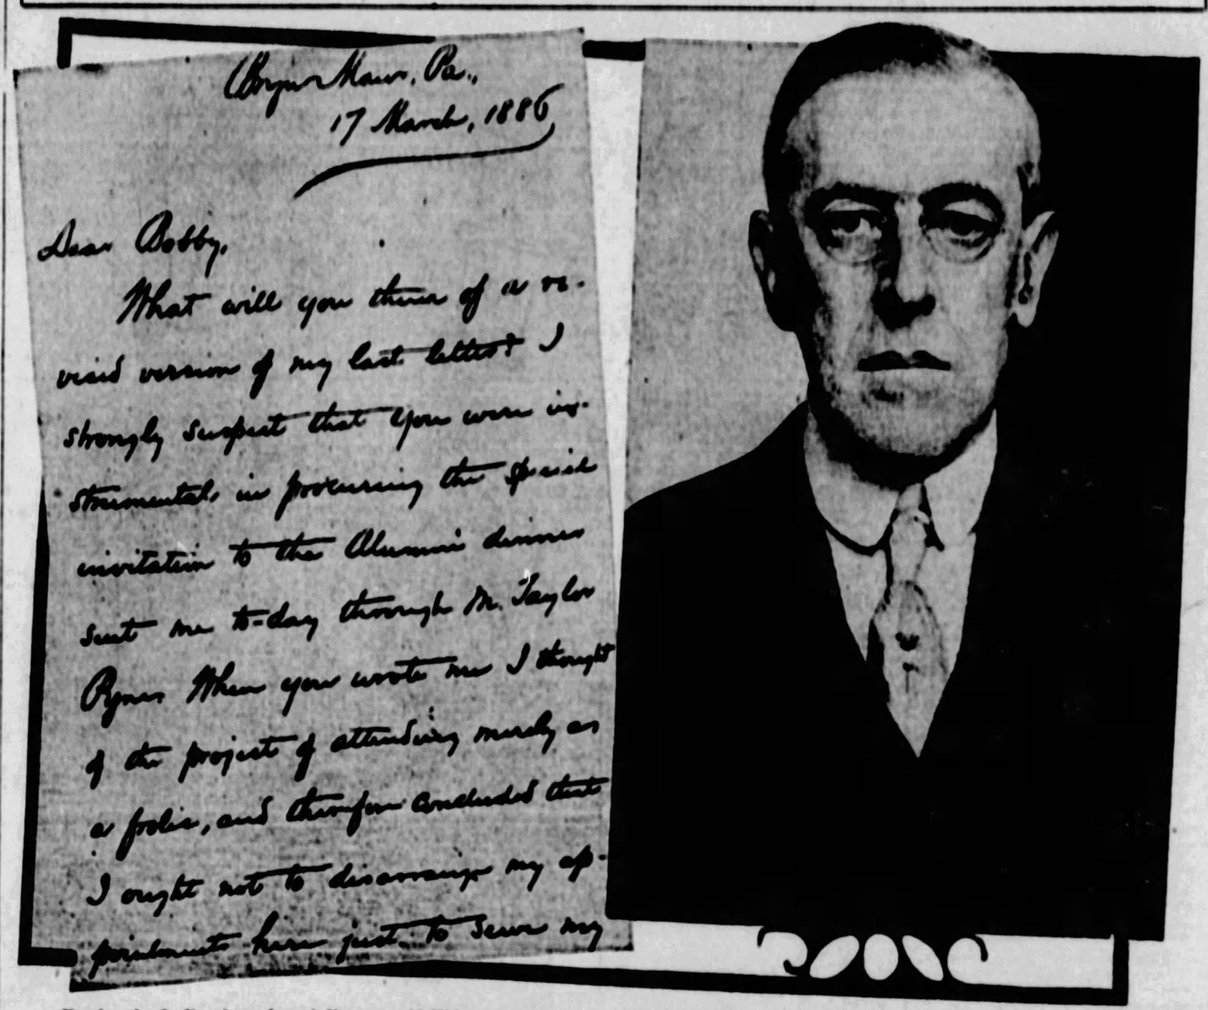
"Dear Bobby:

"First for a piece of news. You are being addressed by a father. I have a little daughter three days old. She is not here. I have not seen her. Mrs. Wilson went South, to one of her aunts in Georgia, last week—and the baby was born the day after her arrival; two or three weeks before it was expected. The birth was unquestionably hastened by the fatigues of the journey; and I have been made desperately anxious by the circumstances, as you may suppose. But the news is that both mother and baby are doing well."

Wilson's growing associations with men of literary bent and his relief over finishing the distasteful business of getting his Johns Hopkins degree will be described in tomorrow's chapter.

FEDERATION'S NEW BOARD MEETS

SERIOUS-MINDED YOUTH AND MATURITY



Not for the frolic of an alumni dinner could Wilson disarrange his plans in 1886, as shown by this page of a letter to Robert Bridges. The self-discipline then become a habit prepared him for the exactions of office as 28th president of the United States.

CLUB WOMEN VISIT ART EXHIBIT

A meeting of the newly-elected executive board was held by the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women this morning in the Hotel Schenley. Later the board and those delegates remaining in the city visited the International Art Exhibit in Carnegie Institute and were addressed by Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of the department of fine arts. This afternoon they visited the museum and were told some of its remarkable features by its director, Andrey Avinoff. At 4 o'clock a tea was given in the Aspinwall Woman's Club.

The nominating committee's ticket, headed by Mrs. John A. Frick of Allentown as president, was elected in its entirety. Mrs. John E. McKirdy is the new vice president of this district. Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, also of Pittsburgh, was re-elected as vice president-at-large and Mrs. John A. Elliott of Beaver Falls is the district's representative on the board. Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl, Mrs. Carl E. Casolowsky, Miss Gertrude MacKinney and Mrs. McKirdy were chosen as delegates from the southwestern district to the biennial meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in San Antonio, Tex., next year.

"There is no need to think hardly of the next generation when out of our small towns we bring such boys as Charles Lindbergh," Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, former president of the General Federation, said in her address last night in Syria Mosque. Mrs. Winter is the author of "The Business of Being a Club Woman," is associate editor of the Ladies' Home Journal and was a member of the committee representing the United States at the disarmament conference. Mrs. Winter's address followed a recital by Martha Eaton Brickman, soprano; Anne M. Woestehoff, contralto, and the KDKA Little Symphony Orchestra under the baton of its conductor, Victor Saudek. A press dinner at which Mrs. Adrian W. McCoy, retiring as editor of The Messenger, after eight years of gratuitous service, was the toastmistress, overran all expectations. It was held at the Ruskin for the discussion of publicity problems. Mrs. Winter, Mrs. John B. Hamme, retiring president; Mrs. Diehl, retiring district president, and Mrs. John Sippel, nominee for the presidency of the General Federation, were among the guests. Mrs. Imogene H. Oakley of Bryn Mawr was honor guest.

Religion, rythm and visability were the "Three Rs in Home Making" spoken of by Mrs. Harry Burnham, prominent Massachusetts clubwoman, at the afternoon session, and Kenneth Macgowan, critic, author and play producer, spoke on "The Theater of Today and Tomorrow." Martha Reeves, Frank Sullivan, Ruth Aston and Durbin Horner, Carnegie Tech pupils of Mme. Suzanne Karpova, contributed dances to the program. Speakers on the morning program were Mrs. Oakley, who is chairman of the Philadelphia joint committee on open-air pictures; Dr. John A. H. Keith, state superintendent of public instruction; Dr. William Van de Wall of the State Department of Public Health and Dr. John A. Hollinger of the Pittsburgh Board of Public Education. At noon a motion picture demonstration was held in the Schenley Theater. In the Twentieth Century Club at 4 o'clock "The Magnificent Gesture," a play by Verner Watson, was produced by a cast of the club members.

INQUEST HOLDS DEATH DRIVER

Frank Lubardo of 3247 Forbes street was recommended to be held for the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Nicholas Buzzella, 19, of 4208 Langan street and Angelo Palicchic, 21, of 464 Field street.

The two men were occupants of an automobile wrecked in North Highland avenue, September 6, causing their deaths. Lubardo was driving the machine.

PARTY NAME IS CONTESTED

Attorney Leonard Mazer in Common Pleas Court yesterday asked that the Independent party nomination papers of James A. Fulton, candidate for councilman in the Sixth Ward of McKeesport, be set aside.

Attorney Mazer told the court that the Independent party name had been pre-empted by Thomas R. Dixon. A hearing in the case will be held this afternoon.

TEMPERANCE FIELD DAY TO BE OBSERVED SUNDAY

The second annual Pittsburgh Temperance Field Day will be observed in about 100 local churches Sunday with special services and speakers. Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, who is filling the place of the late Dr. Wayne B. Wheeler; Dr. Ernest Cherrington of Westerville, O., superintendent of the World League Against Alcohol and former Congressman William D. Upshaw of Georgia will take part. Dr. McBride will speak in the First United Presbyterian Church, Mt. Lebanon, in the morning, and in the afternoon and evening will attend the Methodist Episcopal conference in McKeesport. All the visitors will meet for dinner at the Fort Pitt Hotel Sunday.

CIGARET BLAMED FOR OCEAN CITY BLAZE

Damage of $3,000,000, caused by the most disastrous fire in the history of Ocean City, N. J., a seashore resort, was attributed to the careless throwing of a lighted match or cigaret into a pile of rubbish. Before firemen from 20 surrounding municipalities could succeed in checking the flames, two hotels had been destroyed and great damage had been done to homes in the residential section. Photo shows a view of the ruins of the Hotel Normandie still smoldering.

Sally's Shoulders

ENGROSSING DIFFERENT LIVELY DRAMATIC

By BEATRICE BURTON

Ted Sloan Makes Appearance In the Middle of the Night Sally Refuses Chat

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

SALLY JEROME is the mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who is separated from her mother. MRS. JEROME enjoys ill health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work afternoons. BEAU and MILLIE, her brother and sister, give little towards the support of the home. TED SLOAN is in love with Sally and wants her to marry him. But Sally is interested only in JOHN NYE, for whom Millie works. Nye, however, is infatuated with Millie, who prefers a bond salesman named DAVIDSON, to him. Davidson worries Sally with his attentions. Presently Ted confesses that he is ashamed of his public dancing, and Sally sends him packing. Millie quits her job with John Nye, explaining that he "got fresh" with her. Beau's wife, MABEL, who takes the job, doubts her story. Millie gets a job in Davidson's office and tells a similar story about him, which Davidson later denies. Then Millie decides to go away with her mother and father on a sea trip for the latter's health. After she goes, Nye shows up at the restaurant conducted by Sally and her AUNT EMILY, tells Sally that it's common to dance in public, as he and she have been doing, and goes away, leaving Sally filled with determination to dance no more in the restaurant. Aunt Em agrees with her and lets the band go, too. One day Ted takes Sally for a ride and tells her he'll be glad to marry her if she'll never dance again and will settle down.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"WELL, I'll go down and make short work of them!" cried Aunt Em in a determined voice, and started down the stairs, all primed and ready for battle.

Sally brushed up her hair, washed her hands and followed her.

By the time she got to the lower floor the party of six were on their feet and marching for the front door, all of them glaring at Aunt Em, and the women murmuring impolite remarks under their alcoholic breath.

"Never heard of such a thing!" one of them declared. "Plenty of other places, though, thank the Lord!"

Their car turned toward The Lark, a mile away down the road.

"What did you say to them?" asked Sally, watching them go.

"Told them they couldn't drink liquor here—that this was a respectable place," answered her aunt, grimly. "They said they'd been having it here all summer—and I suppose they had. How could we have been so blind to what was going on, Sally?"

"We were busy," said Sally, with a sigh. "Busy enough to be blind to almost anything."

"We did enough work for six women." This from Aunt Emily, with a sigh that matched Sally's own.

They had very little work to do that night. Sunday always was dull at night, but this Sunday held the record for dullness.

Hilda, the waitress, served only 39 people during the evening. And at 12 o'clock half of the fresh grape pies that Aunt Em had made were on the pantry shelf, untouched. So were half of the chickens that had been parboiled, ready for frying.

"Two automobile loads of young college kids stopped in," said [illegible] calling to Sally from [illegible] where she was undressing [illegible]d a little later. "But [illegible]y found out that there was no music for dancing they went away again. I told them to come back some week night—that we still had our phonograph."

Sally said nothing. She had not much faith in their return the next week. When young folks started out for an evening of dancing they wanted good music—loud and peppy and intoxicating.

"I reckon we're losing our dancers as well as our drinkers," she told herself, turning into her own room and switching on the lights.

Just as they flashed up the door bell rang loudly, and she jumped.

"Now, who can that be at this [illegible]" she called to Aunt Em, looking down at her cheap little wrist watch. "It's almost 1."

"Probably just a boy with a telegram from your mother or Millie, asking for some extra money," replied Aunt Em, and there was weariness in her tones. "I notice that they're all awfully glad to take money from us, even if they do think we're both disgraced. You go downstairs, will you? I'm all ready for bed."

Down the stairs went Sally. She turned on the porch light to see who stood without, before opening the door. The soft radiance shone on the crisp red hair and glinting gray eyes of Ted.

Beyond him, against the darkness, shone the headlights of his little automobile.

"I want to see you." He formed the words silently with his mouth, and his gray eyes pleaded.

But Sally shook her head . . . No use to see him any more, she thought. What use was there in patching up their quarrel? Friend or enemy, he meant nothing to her. Her lack of sorrow over their misunderstanding of the afternoon had shown her that all too plainly.

"Please!" He was begging her now, and she could catch the sound of his voice as he spoke.

She opened the door a tiny crack. "Too late to talk tonight. Call me up tomorrow if you like," she said dully to him. "I'm not angry."

She wasn't angry. She was hurt. . . . Now, that she had had a chance to think it over, she simply felt like laughing at some of the things he had said. Offering to marry her now that she had stopped dancing!

"As if I ever would have married him, anyway!" she said to herself, scornfully, watching him go down the steps and vanish into the small creaking car. "Who does he think he is?"

Aunt Em was sitting at the head of the stairs, listening, when she went up once more. An old and pathetic figure, somehow, in her nightcap and queer old plaid bathrobe.

"Ted Sloan—wasn't it?" she asked, and Sally nodded, dropping down beside her for a minute.

"He wanted to talk to me—I suppose he's been riding around, worrying about our fuss, ever since this afternoon," she said. "I told him to call me up tomorrow. I hope he doesn't. It won't do him any good. Nothing he ever can say or do will make me like him. I don't like him and I never will."

"You still think about that Nye, don't you?" asked Aunt Em, sharply.

Sally barely nodded her dark and lovely head. "I can't help it," she said softly, solemnly. "You said I'd get over it—and I swore I would. But I don't."

Silence in the big house, where the sweet odors of dried rose leaves and pine needles fought with the smell of boiled coffee and broiled chickens constantly.

"And the worst of it is that he sees me just as Ted does—as a disgraceful creature who shimmied in a public restaurant!" she sighed keenly. "Gosh! We've sure wrecked ourselves, haven't we?"

CHAPTER LXI.

TED was true to his promise to come back the next day. For at half past five his little car came rattling and jiggling and wheezing into the back yard, and stopped beside Aunt Emily's bed of flaming red salvia.

Sally saw him jump out and rush around the house at top speed.

She heard his voice in the front hall, loudly and cheerfully asking Aunt Emily "where that good-looking dancer of hers was."

The dancer was out in the kitchen helping with the salads, looking not at all like a dancer, good-looking or otherwise, at that moment.

She had a white cap pulled away down over her hair, and a white apron buttoned around her slim, graceful figure. She was measuring olive oil into a yellow bowl and did not look up when Ted burst into the warm, bright, cluttered room.

"Hello!" he said, his voice and his eyes filled with eagerness. "Going to talk to me today?"

"One—two—three," said Sally, counting the spoonfuls of green-gold oil. "Why, yes, go right ahead with anything you want to say, Ted." She looked up then, and shot Ted a humorous look from her deep, blue eyes.

He looked back at her helplessly, pleadingly. Then he waved one of his square, freckled hands in the direction of Hilda, the little waitress, who was stuffing celery with Roquefort cheese paste at the table under the windows.

"How can I talk to you here?" he asked quietly.

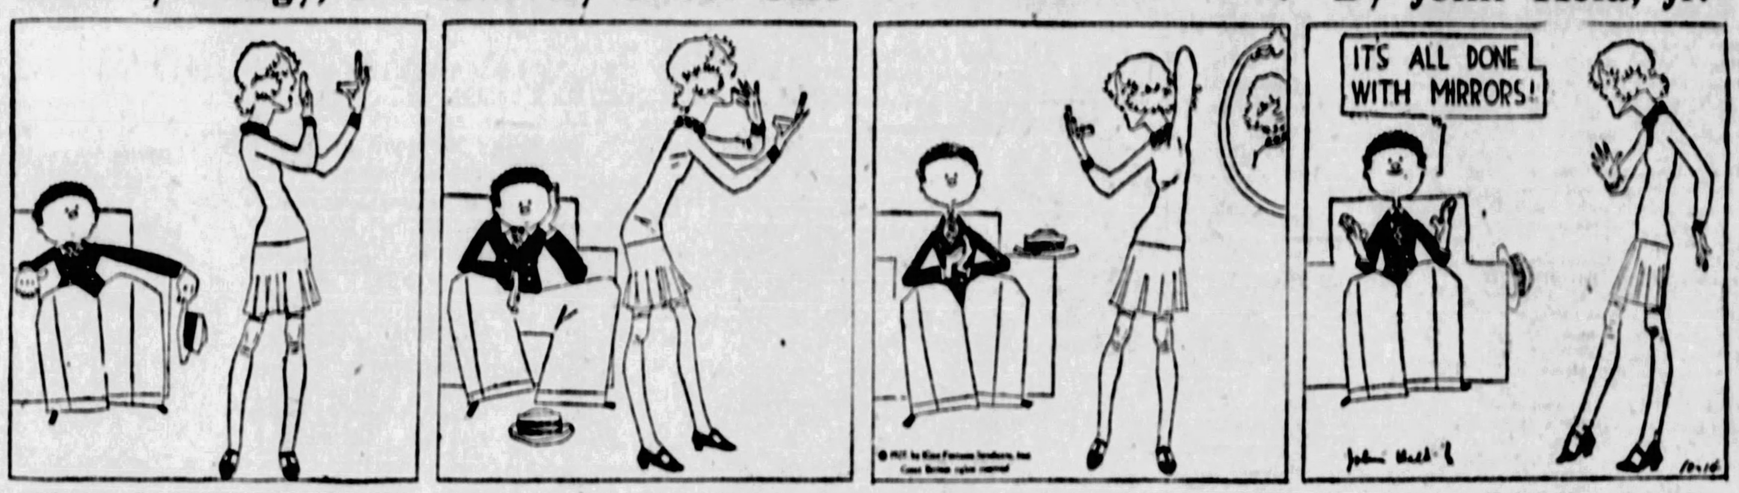
Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer — By John Held, Jr.



"My dear, I'm HONestly getting just TOO TIRED of having ARab practicably on my NECK all the entire time because I mean it ACtually makes me so MAD I could GARgle BUTtermilk the way that perVERted little PIPsqueak simply inSISTS on sticking ROUND, do you know what I mean? Because, as I've TOLD him HEAPS of times, my dear, there are LOADS of other awfully sweet girls that he could prob'ly deVOTE himself to and I REALly think it's a great mistAKE for a boy to just CONsecrate on ONE girl especially when she has got to the POINT where she could actually snap her BIScuits at the SIGHT of his odd MUG, because I mean when such in the CASE he is sort of LIKEly to go unapPREciated. But I mean, SEriously, my dear, at this HOUSE party ARab ACtually drove me NEARLY FRANtic because he honestly purSUED me day and NIGHT—can you BEAR it? But what GRIPES me about it is the way he is eTERnally making these sort of FLIP reMARKS about the situAtion, which HONestly SLAYS me, no less, because they REALly aren't a BIT funny and he is ALways getting them OFF at the wrong MOment, like once when I was POWD'ring my NOSE and giving the CUpid's bow the ONCE over. I mean he sort of SAT there HEAVily, watching EV'ry MOVEment, my dear, and then remarked, 'It's all done with MIRrors!' CAN you BEAR it?"

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary Has a Duel of Wits With Eleanor Lincoln

IT was only for an instant that I saw panic mirrored in the great black pansy eyes of Eleanor Lincoln, our mysterious new neighbor. So swiftly did it vanish that I told myself I must be mistaken in thinking she had betrayed fear at Mary Harrison's assertion that she was positive she had seen her before.

"It's entirely possible," Miss Lincoln said with a touch of hauteur that someway became her better that the rather boydenish manner she had shown but a moment before. "But it's not very probable. We came here from the West not so very long ago, and I spent several weeks in a hospital—throat trouble—so that I did not go around New York very much. Really about the only place where you could have seen me was at that club where Mr. Veritzen played. Were you there?"

It was Mary's turn to betray panic and with cause. The secret of her identity as the masked dancer at the night-club had been carefully guarded since the night which marked the dramatic finale of that experience. But this stranger who had seen Noel there might very easily have noticed her also, and need only the present fillip of memory to make an accurate and embarrassing guess. I cast about in my mind for an interpolation which would save Mary an answer, when Dicky easily and plausibly came to the rescue.

"You're touching on a sore subject, Miss Lincoln," he said lazily. "My niece always wanted to go to that club to see the famous masked dancer who was there for a time, but she had so rigid a regime of study that she never felt she could spare the time to go. And then, upon the only night when she took an evening off and went down there, the masked dancer was ill and did not appear. Mary never had the courage to repeat the experience."

I was amazed at his ingenious mixture of truth and falsehood, but for a tense minute I thought he had overreached himself, for Miss Lincoln was gazing at Mary with absorbed interest.

"I saw that masked dancer," she said slowly, "the same night I heard Mr. Veritzen play, "and do you know, if your uncle's words hadn't made my fancy impossible, I should imagine you were she. You have the same height, figure—everything."

If Mary in the future acquits herself with such histrionic ability as she did at that crucial moment, there will be no question of her success.

"How perfectly wonderful!" she caroled. "I am simply thrilled pink. I've heard so much about that girl, and wanted to see her so much, and now to be told that I look like her! Do you hear, Antie Madge, everybody? I warn you I'm going to be terribly conceited from now on."

We all laughed, dutifully, and Miss Lincoln, evidently satisfied, addressed Noel again.

"'Veritzen' is an unusual name," she said. "Do you—are you by any chance related to Philip Veritzen, the famous theatrical producer?"

Noel flushed painfully.

"He is my father," he said slowly.

The girl clapped her hands as if she were a child who saw a box of bon-bons approaching labeled for her.

"Oh, how fortunate!" she said. "I was wondering how I was going to see him. Now it will be very simple. You shall take me to him and introduce me. I want him to hear me. I have high ambitions. I wish to become a great actress, and as he holds the most exalted place in his profession, I desire to see him."

I saw Dicky start perceptibly at this extraordinary speech, and knew that despite his admiration of the girl he was having hard work to subdue a chuckle at her naive audacity. When I thought of the thorny hedges of reserve which Philip Veritzen had built around himself, and the almost impossibility of his listening to any novice whom he had not himself selected for an audience, I silently echoed Dicky's amusement, albeit I also felt a bewilderment at a certain unreasoning peremptoriness of phrasing and manner in our young neighbor's astonishing proposition. Truly, I reflected, whatever might be our new neighbor's history, she has been accustomed to having her own way.

WHAT'S the ANSWER?

1. About how much silk does it take to make a pair of silk stockings?
2. What animal lives longest?
3. About how many people are there in the crew of a large Atlantic liner?
4. What is the difference between soft coal and hard coal?
5. Why doesn't asbestos burn?
6. What does "sterling" mean?
7. Is our hair alive?
8. How did men tell time before clocks were invented?
9. Who wrote "The Prisoner of Chillon?"
10. Who was president of the French republic at the time of the outbreak of the World War?

The answers to these questions may be found in tomorrow's paper.

Here are the answers to yesterday's questions.

1. A "foil" is a leaf. Therefore, tin-foil should be tin rolled and beaten out to a leaf-like thinness. Generally, however, because of the high price of tin, a mere "skin" of tin-foil is beaten on to another sheet of lead or some metal alloy.
2. In old times, cakes were great luxuries, and a cake was often a prize in all kinds of competitions. Today it is not so precious but we still speak of somebody "taking the cake," meaning winning the prize.
3. Saxophone is named for Antoine Joseph Sax, who invented it in 1846.
4. Cheiromancy is the scientific name for palmistry.
5. It is hard to run uphill because when you run uphill you lift your weight against the force of gravity.
6. The wife of an earl is a countess.
7. Topology is the art of aiding the memory to recall objects through their association with well-known places.
8. The ruby is the birthstone for July.
9. Steel is iron which contains a very small amount of carbon and other elements. The carbon makes the iron atoms arrange themselves somewhat differently inside the metal. They stick tigher to each other and that makes the steel tougher and harder than pure iron is.
10. Isinglass is a gelatinous substance prepared from the air-bladders of certain fish, particularly the sturgeon and cod.

Cucumber Sauce

Half cup heavy cream, ¼ teaspoonful vinegar, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 tablespoon minced onion or chives, 1 cup fresh cucumber, chopped and drained.

Whip the cream until thick. Mix the seasonings with the vinegar and add it gradually to the cream. Add the drained cucumber, parsley, pepper and onion and fold them into the cream mixture. If cucumber is not well-drained, the sauce is thinned. The sauce must be served at once after mixing. It is excellent with any fish or with chops or roast.

METHODISTS TO HEAR MERGER PLANS

A proposal that the Pittsburgh and Erie Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church be merged will be made at the annual meeting of the Pittsburgh Conference now in session in the McKeesport Methodist Episcopal Church. The Rev. Dr. A. C. Lech, of Dubois, will present overtures for the merger on behalf of the Erie Conference.

The merger would add to the Pittsburgh Conference the Allegheny College, a Methodist institution, and five church districts containing 200 churches, 15 of which have a membership of more than 1,000 each. Those considering the merger point out, however, that although the merger would give the Pittsburgh Conference greater elasticity in making ministerial assignments, other problems might arise from the fact that the Pittsburgh Conference embraces an industrial area, while the Erie Conference is made up of agricultural districts.

The Rev. Dr. S. W. Corcoran, superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Church Union of Allegheny County, in his report on social service work, declared that some of the highest public officials of Pittsburgh and Allegheny county were elected by the most vicious element.

"While the church is numerically stronger than the underworld, the underworld in Allegheny county votes 150 per cent strong while the church does not muster more than 25 per cent of its strength at the polls," he said. Ministers as well as laymen are lax in this civic duty, he said.

The Rev. Adam Nagy, superintendent of the conference missionary work in the coke regions, reported industrial depression so pronounced that it was making missionary work difficult.

"Hungry men will not listen to sermons," he said.

The following ministerial candidates who have completed a four-year course of study were elected to elders' orders: G. M. Conner, A. D. Eberhart, J. A. Forgie, W. C. Marquis, C. N. McCandless, J. A. McInturff, E. H. Miller, W. R. Robinson and J. W. Schrader. C. J. Bland was elected to deacon's orders.

During the morning session the ministers were also able to select only two of the six delegates to the quadrennial conference, which meets next May in Kansas City. On the first ballot only the Revs. R. B. Urmy, Bellevue church, and H. M. Chalfant, Pennsylvania editor of the American Issue, received the required percentage of ballots to insure election.

The laymen meeting in Central Presbyterian Church, also had a spirited election. Fourteen candidates were nominated.

Dr. W. H. McMaster, president Mt. Union College, in an address before the conference announced that institution had wiped out a debt of $1,125,000 and is now eligible to receive $300,000 from the John D. Rockefeller educational board.

ARMSTRONG HITS OPPONENTS

The coming election is a "choice between parties and not individuals if the spirit of our system of government is to be followed," said County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, opening the Republican campaign at a noon meeting in the Hotel Henry headquarters today.

"It appears at this late date that while my friends have been very much in evidence in giving me the great vote they did, my enemies are still alive and haven't given up their task of trying to discredit me and interfere with my future any more today than when they started a quarter of a century ago," said Armstrong, adding that such criticism comes to every man in public life who tries to accomplish something for the people.

"You may not always have agreed with my politics," he said. "But weigh my record and decide whether I have been a faithful servant of the people. I have always felt that if a man cannot win on his own strength he should not succeed on his opponent's weakness. I am going to follow that same course in this campaign."

FREE DETECTIVE, CONVICT TWO

John Williams, private detective, ex-prohibition agent, scored a double-barreled victory in his two-year feud with the Wilmerding police force in Criminal Court today when, in a cross suit, he was acquitted on charges of assault and battery and pointing firearms, and two of three Wilmerding policemen were found guilty of felonious assault charges. The trials were the outcome of an alleged attack on Williams by the officers in the Wilmerding police station July 1.

Capt. C. F. Boyle and Patrolman Moody Champ were found guilty of beating up Williams and Patrolman Richard H. Hahn was acquitted on the same charge.

WIFE WEEPS AT DIVORCE TRIAL

Tears streamed down her face as pretty Ellen M. Smith, young wife, told, in Common Pleas Court today of how her husband, Alex Smith, 3,060 Shadeland avenue, had deserted her while she recuperated from an illness in her mother's home two years ago. The wife is suing for divorce.

The husband packed up all their belongings and left secretly, the wife testified, and hasn't been heard from since. The decision was not announced.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

GETTING OUT OF A LOVE-AFFAIR

MAKING an effective exit, whether from the last scene of a play or from the last scene of a love-affair, is one of the Fine Arts of Life.

The beginning and the end of a story or a romance are SO important to a woman. They are the hors d'oeuvres and the dessert, without which the whole love-feast lacks charm and flavor.

* * *

A woman always wants to end a love-affair with a flourish and a grande finale—to ring down the curtain on a last beautiful scene, with tears and kisses in the foreground and a lovely sunset in the background.

HELEN ROWLAND

She wants something tender and thrilling to REMEMBER—a reassurance or a caress to put away like a forget-me-not in the book of her memory.

* * *

But, once love has begun to pall, a man's only thought is to rush out of it and slam the door behind him! And, if the door is locked, he'll climb down the fire-escape or crawl out through the chimney.

All he wants is to FORGET!

The average woman nearly drives a man insane, with her persistent attempts to perform an autopsy over a defunct romance.

"WHY did you? Why DON'T you? How COULD you? Tell me, tell me, TELL me!"

* * *

A woman likes to look backward—and dream!

A man always looks forward—to the NEXT dream!

All of which is very sad for both of them. It would be SO easy for a man to stage an effective exit, a beautiful ending to even the lightest of his loves; and to leave a woman with her vanity intact, her heart appeased and the comforting thought that she had had at least ONE Prince Charming in her life!

Fay King Tells Why Wives Should Not Work

By FAY KING.

HOUSEWORK today has been reduced to a minimum of labor. It is not the endless drag that it was once.

For this reason many married women find time drags on their hands, especially if they have no children. If they have formerly been in the business world they would like to continue in some position, even after they are married.

I do not approve of women married to men who can support them holding positions that are needed by single women or by men of families.

Still, I can understand the restlessness they are experiencing and cannot help admiring them for wishing to be busy and to occupy their time.

But there are countless ways in which they can "kill time" and accomplish useful things without drawing a salary which they do not need and which someone else does.

The stores have numerous classes in which they teach customers to fashion home decorations, like lamp shades, cushions, candle sticks, etc., from materials bought in the store. Pleasant afternoons may be spent in this way.

Schools of dressmaking, millinery and cooking will pass time.

There are languages to be learned, lecture courses, singing, painting, music, a hundred ways in which a married woman can spend her time improving herself in useful arts or accomplishments without intruding upon the livelihood of others who need to support themselves and their dependents!

Triangles

Look at the eight white triangles in today's drawing.

Each one bears a different letter.

One of those eight-lettered triangles is exactly the same size as the black triangle in the center of the drawing.

Which triangle is the one? Make your choice!

Horoscope

Saturday, October 15

Search all things, hold fast that which is true.—Proverbs.

A DAY of fine enterprise and possibly spectacular achievement is forecast from the dominant lunar configurations.

With the luminaries in trine, supported by the trine aspect of moon and Mars, there is no end to the responsibilities for aggressive measures and initiative, in independent business, new projects and employment. Yet there may be ill-advised and hasty changes, and there is need for careful and conservative handling of funds.

Speculations and law are risky.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of great opportunity in business, new undertakings and in employment. Their energies will be under high stimulus to initiative, but be careful as to change, speculation and litigation.

A child born on this day should have fine abilities to achieve either in employment or on its own account. But it should be schooled in prudent handling of its funds and as to restlessness and tendency to make abrupt changes.

Notable Nativity: Denman Thompson, actor and author of "Old Homestead."

PILL-TAKER FREED FROM HIS HABIT

ALL-BRAN brought natural relief from chronic constipation

Constipation is almost a universal curse—father of more than forty diseases. Yet there is real assurance in Mr. Ladue's letter:

"After sixteen years of taking pills, it cured me. If the millions of people that suffer from constipation only knew what Kellogg's ALL-BRAN would do, some of the pill-makers would go out of business. Every doctor should recommend it. I tell all that I know so that they can get the joy out of life I am getting since I started on Kellogg's ALL-BRAN 3 months ago."

MR. JULIAN LADUE
Burlington, Vt.

Hollow cheeks, pimples, listlessness are some of the symptoms. Don't risk it another day. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Delicious with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Use in cooking. Comes ready to eat. Sold and served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Recipes on package.

A SOAP SO GOOD... it lathers generously even in cold water

ALL SOAPS are not alike. And it's easy to tell the difference. Try them in COLD WATER. Octagon Toilet Soap is so readily soluble that it works up a quick, cleansing lather even when the water is cold. Watch this eager lather grow. It goes down deep, cleans each tiny pore, conquers grime and dirt . . yet each little bubble is a caress to your skin. Octagon will do all this in cold water—in hard water. And doesn't it stand to reason that a soap so good in cold water will be even better in warm? And Octagon is better.

It is rich in cocoanut oil, which assures a generous lather in any kind of water, and a cleansing lather that is beneficial to the tenderest skin. You can easily prove it yourself. The long-lasting, delicately scented, glistening white cake of Octagon is only 10c. And there is a coupon on the wrapper of each cake that you can exchange for valuable premiums. Coupons from Fab . . Colgate's washbowl flakes for fine fabrics . . may be combined with Octagon Soap Product coupons to secure any of these premiums.

George Bancroft, Film Bad Man, Credited With Having as Much Temperament as Jetta Goudal

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14.

YOU WOULD never suspect George Bancroft, the smiling crook in "Underworld," the sheriff in "The Pony Express," and the midshipman in "Old Ironsides," of concealing temperament. Yet, over at Paramount-Famous-Lasky he is being credited with having as much temperament as Jetta Goudal.

This is the story as given to me. Mr. Bancroft's contract expires and he has refused to sign again, although Paramount holds an option on his services. Money is whispered as the cause. At Famous they say if Mr. Bancroft persists in refusing to come to terms they will get an injunction on his services. He has threatened in that event to go to Germany and make pictures.

I hope I am not being unfair to Mr. Bancroft—all I know is what the film company says. Mr. Bancroft could not be located, and Mrs. Bancroft, who is his business agent, said there had been no trouble as far as she knew. Let us hope Mr. Bancroft does not make the mistake of staying off the screen too long, for in all cases this has proven disastrous.

It's best, however, not to mix in these family rows. "Honky Tonky," Mr. Bancroft's next, meanwhile is being held in abeyance, although there is talk that Gary Cooper may be named as substitute.

"Speedy" is the title of Harold Lloyd's next picture. S. R. Kent, general manager of Paramount, selected it, and Harold is not the kind of boy who would disappoint the general manager of his film company. It may be a good title at that. You can't tell until you see the picture. Anyway, now that he has got a name for his next comedy, Harold and Mildred and the baby are leaving Sunday for Hollywood. They didn't finish their exteriors in New York, but what matters a little thing like that when there is a Westwood and a place big enough to build a New York street. Looks now as if "Speedy" will be released in the spring.

I didn't know that Warner Oland had left Warner Brothers until someone told me that he had been given the principal character role in Rod La Rocque's picture, "Stand and Deliver." A good actor can always free lance easily because he usually has more jobs than he can fulfill. This I believe is Mr. Oland's first free lance assignment. There is a whisper at the De Mille studios that Jacqueline Logan will play opposite Rod. Cecil De Mille is doing everything to groom her for Jetta Goudal's place, vacated when she and Mr. De Mille came to a parting of the ways. Miss Goudal is really a fine actress. It's too bad that she doesn't match her disposition with her talents.

There is no writer who knows his Ireland better than Don Byrne. Neither is any director more familiar with Erin than John Ford, whose family for generations resided in the Emerald Isle. Hence it is particularly fitting that Mr. Ford should direct "Hangman's House," a Byrne story with a race track background, for the Fox Company. Olive Borden is being considered for the lead. At least John Ford wants her, and these directors usually get the stars for their pictures that they want.

Would you like to hear the voice of your favorite star when you are looking at his or her picture? Would it intrigue you to hear Mary Pickford's own voice while she was selling goods in the 10-cent store in "My Best Girl?" Would you be thrilled at hearing Marion Davies in "The Fair Co-ed"? The reason I am asking is that William Alexander writes from New York that he has a vocal trailer which is to make its appearance shortly. He says he considers it of great benefit to the exhibitor. I don't know whether I agree with him or not. I believe if they take away the silence of the movies, they will take away its greatest charm.

Eddie Cantor telegraphed to say that his wife has presented him with a baby girl. "After looking her over," says Eddie, "I have decided to keep her. Mother and baby are both doing well in the hospital and father is doing well at the New Amsterdam Theater."

I believe this is the sixth Cantor baby. Eddie is certainly doing his share to keep up the birth rate.

Big Benefit Show Is Carded for Tonight

More than 20 acts are on the program arranged for the midnight show which is to be given under the auspices of the Theater Managers' Association of Pittsburgh in Sheridan Square Theater tonight for the benefit of the union stage employes and motion picture operators. The performance is to begin at 11:45 o'clock and it will run until after past 2 a. m. D. A. Harris, president of the Theater Managers' Association, will introduce the master of ceremonies, Dave Manley, of the vaudeville team of Manley and Baldwin.

A. E. Matthews, who plays the leading role in "Interference" in the Alvin, has volunteered to give a monologue. Eddie Peyton and his Dixie Dandies from the East End Theater will give a musical revue. The new Penn will contribute the Eight Tiller Girls in a miniature modern ballet. The Davis will be represented by Frakson, magician, and Lillian Fitzgerald, singing comedienne. The Sheridan Square will present Ed Sheriff and Company, Creedon and Davis, Arthur Jarrett and Company, Blue Grass Four and Bailey and Phil. Acts from the Harris will include Jarrow, with his lemon trick, Gerber's Jesters, Davis and McCoy and Janet Childs. Marty Schramm and his Troubadours, Marie MacQuarrie, with her Harp Ensemble, and the Schenley Theater current revue are among the musical attractions. The Grand will send its violin soloist, Elias Breeskin, as well as the operatic duo, Dolores Cassinelli and Julian Oliver. Loew's Aldine Theater will be represented by Howard and Lynn, a couple of clever girls in songs and comedy. These, with the McMemry trio, and sundry other acts, will keep the show going two hours and a half.

Equipment Has Ominous Look

MARY ASTOR is smiling, though, so the chap can't be a dentist. In fact, we are assured she is being made up for "Rose of the Golden West."

New Langdon Film Given Title of "The Chaser"

Harry Langdon's forthcoming starring vehicle has received a definite name. It will be released under the title of "The Chaser."

The picture, suburban in locale, is described as a broad farce built upon a domestic theme, with Harry playing the role of a young married man who likes to play cards of an evening and explains his absence by saying that he has been "sitting up with a sick friend."

Many complications result from his habits and the fact that he lives at the end of a car line in a large city.

Gladys McConnell, who appeared with Langdon in "Three's a Crowd," is again his leading lady in "The Chaser." Arthur Thalasso has the role of the heavy.

DOROTHY GULLIVER GETS ROLE WITH HOOT GIBSON

Dorothy Gulliver, who has just finished her most important role to date in "The Shield of Honor," has been cast in support of Hoot Gibson in "The Wild West Show."

Jannings Depicts War General In Drama

Evelyn Brent, the feminine lead who contributed her vigorous acting to the success of Paramount's big gang warfare drama, "Underworld," has been rewarded by another role of opportunity. She has been assigned to play opposite the German star, Emil Jannings, in his next picture.

Jannings will have the part of a Russian general in the great war. Miss Brent will be cast as Natcha Davenko. Others in the company will be William Powell, Leo Karlovitch and Michael Visaroff. John Goodrich is writing the story and Josef von Sternberg will direct.

DIRECTOR ASSIGNED FOR FILMING OF BEACH YARN

Irwin Willat was this week assigned to direct the Rex Beach Alaskan story, "The Michigan Kid." It was purchased by Universal three weeks ago.

Villain Thinks Porcupine Is Good Pet

ALBERT ROGELL'S company, filming "The Shepherd of the Hills" for First National Pictures, will arrive in Los Angeles from Utah shortly, loaded with souvenirs and sunburn, if telegraphic advices prove correct.

Molly O'Day is bringing home a pet lamb, orphaned through its mother's curiosity concerning the heels of a mule. John Boles purchased a muzzle-loading, percussion squirrel rifle from an old Mormon settler of the mountains. Mathew Betz has a porcupine, which he believes is a good pet for a film villain.

Alec B. Francis, Romaine Fielding, Joseph Bennet, Maurice Murphy, Marion Douglas and John Westwood of the same troupe are also bringing home souvenirs, like tourists returning from Europe—except that their collections do not have to pass customs.

CHANCE TO PLAY FOR GIRLS

For one of the scenes in "The Medicine Man," coming to the Pitt next week, about twelve women aged 20 to 30 are needed for one of the scenes, and applicants are to be received at the stage door at 11 o'clock Monday morning. They will appear only in the Pittsburgh engagement of six nights and two matinees and will receive compensation. Elliott Lester, author of "The Medicine Man," and Rollo Lloyd, stage director, will make the selections.

Ted Lewis and his "musical clowns" will be seen in the new "Artists and Models," which will be presented in the Alvin for one week, beginning Monday evening, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

The Marx Brothers, comedians in "The Cocoanuts," will be in the Nixon next week. In the company are the Lovey Sisters, singers and dancers; Antonio and Catherine Cansino, dancers, and a string orchestra.

Keith-Albee vaudeville next week in the Davis features Rose's Royal Midgets in song and dance numbers. The screen feature, "Figures Don't Lie," stars Esther Ralston.

Monte Blue Guide To Chicago's Mayor

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14.—Monte Blue called time out in his work on his new picture, "The Comeback," to act this week as official host for the motion picture colony to William Hale Thompson, mayor of Chicago, who is visiting Los Angeles with a party of 17 persons.

At the station when the official stepped off the train Monte welcomed him, together with Arthur Belleville McCoid, president of the local Chicago Club. Later in the day Mayor Thompson visited the Warner studio to watch the star at work.

DANCELAND TO PRESENT NEW FEATURES NIGHTLY

Danceland, in the Olympic Theater building, Fifth avenue, announces for the coming week Fletcher Henderson's Stompers, musical organization, under the direction of Horace Henderson. All of the new dance arrangements played by this band have been arranged by Fletcher Henderson, recording artist. Every night this week will have a feature event. Monday evening live puppies are to be awarded, Tuesday evening is Discovery Night. Wednesday evening everyone will be given a luscious apple and a big surprise, Thursday evening is a surprise night. Friday evening fad coats are to be given to the popular girls. Saturday evening is Carnival Night. There will be a special afternoon dance Saturday.

ARREST DRIVER AFTER CHASE

After a five-mile chase William Jaecke, Jr., 18, of 711 Madison avenue, was arrested yesterday at Evergreen and Mt. Troy roads, Ross township, as the driver of a truck which struck an automobile in East street driven by E. V. Hall, of 1101 Western avenue. Hall's machine was knocked onto the sidewalk and disabled.

He commandeered another machine and gave chase overtaking Jaecke while he was repairing a flat tire. Jaecke, who was arrested charged with violating the automobile laws, told police he did not stop because he believed he had just brushed mudguards with the other machine. He was released under $1,000 bail. The truck he was driving is owned by the Lutz Dairy Company.

PROTEST BRINGS HEIGHT TO AUTO PARKING SIGNS

Parking regulations will be stenciled on poles at a height where they may be read over the top of an automobile, as a result of protests of the Pittsburgh Motor Club. Club members claimed the present stenciling is rendered useless as soon as an automobile is parked in front of a pole.

The Motor Club also endorsed the move to install electric traffic control devices in downtown Pittsburgh, taking exception to the statement of Richard D. Haldeman, president of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation, that "automatic stop signals only made traffic conditions in the average Pennsylvania city worse."

PRIMARY COSTS ARE FILED

The expense account of the McKeesport Regular Republican organization for the recent primary, filed with Clerk of Courts John Francies by its treasurer, David Hardy, shows receipts of $1,925 and expenditures of $1,914.55. Among the contributors were: James F. Woodward, Secretary of Internal Affairs of Pennsylvania; Mayor George H. Lysle, and Frank R. S. Caplan, candidate for judge who withdrew, $200 each; Assemblyman John A. Rhodes, James Reddington, county detective, and David Hardy, mercantile appraiser, $100 each; W. L. Henderson, director of the poor, $25. The organization spent $340 for 108 watchers.

The Republican organization of McKees Rocks received $200 in contributions and spent $225, including expenses for one overseer at $10, and 23 watchers for $115, according to its expense account for the primary filed yesterday by Howard E. Millard, treasurer.

LOSES LEG, GETS $12,000

Twelve thousand dollars was awarded Miss Francis M. Stewart, 19, of 7412 Schoyer avenue, Swissvale, against the Pennsylvania Railroad, in a sealed verdict read in Judge Joseph M. Swearingen's court this morning. Her mother, Mrs. Rose Stewart, was awarded $3,000 by the same jury.

En route to work August 27, 1925, Miss Stewart was about to board a passenger train at Copeland Station, when the vestibule platform was lowered, striking her on the head. She was thrown under the wheels of the train and suffered injuries which necessitated the amputation of her left leg. She sued for $25,000 damages.

NORTHSIDE BANK ELECTS

Due to the deaths of Henry Buhl, Jr., chairman of the board, and Emil R. Baldinger, president, the board of trustees of the Dollar Savings and Trust Company, North Side, made changes in the personnel of its officers yesterday. George E. Meyer, for 44 years a dry goods merchant, succeeds Mr. Buhl and John A. Fuhs becomes president. The other officers are J. F. McCandless, vice president; A. F. Bruggeman, secretary and treasurer, and E. G. McNail, assistant secretary and treasurer.

12 YEARS FOR HOLDUP MAN

A sentence of six to 12 years in the penitentiary was given Sam Smith, Negro, of 1327 Bedford avenue, in Criminal Court yesterday by Judge Harry H. Rowand, after a jury convicted him on three indictments for robbery. On July 23 Smith and a gang assaulted William Dobbins, of 17 Townsend street, and robbed him of $4, and on August 16 they held up William Rogers and Charles Janessen, both of Evans City. Both robberies occurred near Wylie avenue and Fullerton street. The rest of the gang escaped.

FREE MOTORIST IN MAN'S DEATH

A verdict of acquittal on ground of insufficient evidence was directed by visiting Judge Miles D. Potter in Criminal Court yesterday in the case of Charles Baker, Burgess street, North Side, whose truck struck and killed Richard Hurrell, 77, 3405 Ward street, at South Tenth and Muriel streets, last March 28. Baker was charged with involuntary manslaughter.

Stagg Doesn't Fear Purdue

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 14.—The annual cry—"Stagg Fears Purdue" means nothing this year, according to Alonzo himself, who stated yesterday that he feared neither Purdue, Welch, Wilcox or any team or player in the Conference. Purdue is experiencing its first big year as a Big Ten power. But Stagg refuses to put out his usual "fear" wail.

THROUGH the SPORTLENS by HAVEY BOYLE

PART of a baseball idyll is contained in the bare announcement Mr. Joseph Devine will motor home to the Pacific Coast with Mr. Ray Kremer. There was a time, a few years back, when Joseph Devine was an obscure scout for the Pitts- club and Ray Kremer was more obscure as a pitcher in the Coast League, operating his right arm for the Oakland club, home town of the Devines and Kremers, from which place many years ago, both families had looked across the bay, horror in their eyes, at a great conflagration in 'Frisco.

Havey Boyle.

Kremer, an intelligent pitcher, showing fine success in the Coast League, was passed up by one scout after another, who found, or imagined they found, blemishes in his pitching. Graybeards passed him up until the youthful Devine decided Kremer was ripe for that faroff big league, which, incidentally, Devine had never even seen.

THE gray-bearded scouts wagged doleful heads at Devine and implored him not to risk official decapitation by sending up Kremer to the Pirates, but Devine had the courage of youth, the spirit to stand by his own convictions, come what may, and so he recommended Kremer to the Corsairs. The rest is that sort of reading you like to see.

From the very start, with the Pirates, Kremer established himself as one of the best men in the league—and one of the best men of all baseball history. He worked just a little harder than the average recruit, first because he was old enough to realize his opportunity, and secondly, because he remembered the whispered exhortings of Joseph Devine that if Kremer lost his job—well, maybe the Devines would be saying: "Yes, Joe's out of work again."

So in a few days Mr. Joseph Devine and Mr. Remy Kremer will get into an automobile and tour the great expanses between here and Oakland, 'cross the bay. The world has been good to both of them. Kremer, the obscure minor leaguer, is an established star, and Mr. Devine, once an obscure scout, is now rated one of the very best in the business.

AS ALL Pittsburghers know it was Joseph Devine who sent up to the Pirates Paul Waner, Kremer, Cronin, Rhyne, and it was Joseph who in the fag-end of the last hectic season sent John Miljus a-galloping to the Pirates in answer to a midnight alarm for a pitcher. Another youngster who will be with the squad next season is Dick Bartell, a peppery little infielder, who may some day be a regular, a protege, too, of Devine's.

Joseph Devine looks older than his 37 years. Those cherubic curls which must have adorned the Devine head in those days when he wore juvenile kilts have run away and in their place are bare spots, heralding eventual baldness. A little portly now, the penalty of idleness from baseball work he once indulged in, but extremely youthful in his baseball enthusiasms.

His territory extends from the semi-tropical climes of lower California to the hint of frigidity in Vancouver, thence eastward into Utah and

Pitt Faces Tough Test

By SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT WITH PITT PANTHERS.

DAVENPORT, Ia., Oct. 14.—Speeding on toward Des Moines and the intersectional battle with Drake in the Bulldog's Bowl tomorrow afternoon, Jack Sutherland's Pitt football squad is the question mark of the East.

Pittsburgh football fans who saw Jock's Golden Panthers crush West Virginia, 40 to 0, last Saturday may shout "razzberries" when they hear that Sutherland expects a tough tussle with Drake, but it remains that Chicago critics dope the Iowans to put a crimp in Pitt's championship aspirations.

Three scribes who furnish red hot tips for readers of a Chicago daily predicted last night that Drake will win. Three members of the powerful Northwestern University eleven saw nothing but bad news for the Golden Panthers. Waldo Fisher, crack Purple end, says, "Drake, 12 to 0." Arnold Karsten, tackle, doped it Drake 12, Pitt 0, and Rudy Shuler, the other varsity tackle, thinks the Bulldogs will win, 3 to 0.

Ollie DeVictor, Pitt trainer, who has been nursing bruises and charley horses for 17 years and who is hardly an optimist, is looking at the game through rose colored glasses. The Pitt squad was never in better physical condition according to Ollie and he believes the Panthers will walk away with a 20 to 0 victory.

About the only thing certain is that the weather is at least 20 degrees colder out here on the edge of plains country and no fans in the Drake Bowl tomorrow will sit ala shirt sleeves.

The Panthers took a stiff workout on the University of Chicago practice field yesterday afternoon and they are due for a light drill in Drake Stadium today. Calisthenics followed by a long signal drill with every play in the Sutherland repertoire on exhibition gave a group of Windy City newspaper men something to get windy about. Gibby Welch, flashy Panther captain, was the center of attention during his sojourn at the Windermere Hotel.

Benny Friedman Scores Change In Grid Game

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—A football evolution which has created a "Big Fifty" in the place of the "Big Three" has made even such standard terms of the game as "left halfback" and "right halfback" meaningless, says Benny Friedman, All-American quarterback at Michigan last year, who is here at the head of his Cleveland professional team.

"What you've got in the game today," said Benny as he donned togs for a workout at the Polo Grounds, "are three backs and a signal caller. The day is gone when the job of fullback was to back up the line, the quarterback was the safety man and the halfbacks had fixed stations on the right or left side.

"A player today is either a back or a lineman. That's the only distinction that can be made. And even that doesn't hold exactly on some teams where an end is called on to back up the line or a tackle is sent down to drag in a forward pass."

RUDY DEFEATS TAYLOR

A fighting heart was all that saved Harry Taylor, Pittsburgh lightweight, from a knockout at the hands of Young Rudy, Charleroi school boy, last night in the 10-round main bout of the double windup at the Palisades Rink, McKeesport. Rudy easily took the decision.

Rudy started in his usual manner by rushing Taylor around the ring, shooting rights and lefts that forced Taylor to seek cover. It was near the end of the first round that Rudy dropped Taylor to the floor with a hard right that landed on his ear, Taylor was back on his feet without taking a count.

Taylor fought back gamely round after round, striving desperately to solve the attack of the Charleroi star. Rudy's punches raked Taylor from stem to stern and he was frequently in a bad way.

Teddy Esterbrook, welterweight of Niles, O., defeated Bobby Richardson of Portage, Pa., in the first 10-round bout. Esterbrook had Richardson in a bad way most of the fight with hard rights that forced Richardson to hold on.

In the second round, Richardson rallied a bit and outboxed the blonde from Ohio with a good left hand that popped in the face of Esterbrook frequently. Esterbrook scaled 150 and Richardson at 154½ pounds.

Jimmy Belmont, the knockout artist of Braddock, was forced to go the limit to gain the referee's vote to beat Jimmy Duffy of New Kensington, in the second bout. The judges disagreed, Judge McLaughlin voting the bout a draw, Judge Simco, favoring Belmont. Referee Eddie Kennedy voted for Belmont.

In the opening bout, Chuck Humes of Rochester, Pa., won every round of his fight with Bill Dorias of McKeesport.

Eddie Kennedy refereed all the bouts.

The show was attended by a large crowd.

touchdown after it had tallied, so that the Plaid was leading, 7-6, until Capt. Widerquist, who never before had tried to make a field goal in a game, booted a placement from the 35-yard line for victory.

IN 1924, Wash.-Jeff. was good enough to win, 19-0, without getting the breaks, and the following year the game was halted early in the second half with the score 0-0 after the stands had crashed and injured a flock of spectators. Last year, at Johnstown, Tech scored once and then was halted short of the goal line a number of times, while a fumble started W. & J. on its scoring way and the Presidents finally won, 17 to 6.

Thus, over a seven-year stretch, Fate has been most unkind to the Tartans and most kind to the Presidents in this annual classic. Wonder how it will work out tomorrow? Even the longest lane must have a turning, you know, and it's almost time this one led around a corner.

THE matching of Maxie Rosenbloom of New York and Homer Robertson of Boston for the main bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night recalls previous appearances here of the pair. Maxie boxed Johnny Wilson, former middleweight champion, in the same ring last season, and won handily, although it wasn't a very hot bout. Wilson was through, or should have been, at the time, and Maxie, who is not much of a hitter, slapped him about at will. Rosenbloom showed a tendency to hit with the open glove and clown a bit. However, he is a better fighter than he showed that night, as his repeated victories over Dave Shade and good work against other topnotchers prove. Only a short time back, he met Jimmy Slattery in a bout at Hartford, Conn., billed as being for the world's light-heavyweight championship. Slats got the decision and now is arrayed against Tommy Loughran as a claimant of the honors. As for Robertson, he is a very flashy performer. He has been beating good men in the East and demonstrated in his bouts with Phil (K. O.) Kaplan and Indian Jack Elkhart here that he is capable of mingling with the best in his class. The bout figures on paper to be a good, fast one.

LIONEL CONACHER, erstwhile local hockey star, now with New York, as well as a crack rugby player in his native Canada and a star baseball player in the International League, is appearing in a new role these days, that of assistant coach of the Rutgers football squad. His special duty is to teach the players efficient use of the lateral pass as it works out under the new rule which prevents the defending team from capitaling on fumbles. Rutgers has gone in for the lateral pass probably more than any other team in the East and is doing nicely with it, and its success along these lines is laid almost entirely at the door of Conacher. A versatile guy is Lionel.

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

Two outstanding games of many mark scholastic football games carded tomorrow. The Uniontown-Jeannette engagement on the latter's grounds should bring out some heated conflict, for neither team has suffered defeat this year. Braddock and Wilkinsburg will tangle on Graham Field in another contest that finds a couple of W. P. I. A. L. contenders vieing for the right to rise in the standing.

Other games find Avalon at Swissvale, Greensburg at Erie Central, Monongahela at McKeesport, and Tarentum at New Kensington. In the Beaver Valley, Beaver meets Freedom, Chester visits Midland, New Brighton goes to Rochester and Monaca invades Woodlawn.

The California-at-Monessen contest ought to be interesting, while Grove City and Sharpsville are rivals of old.

In the Wilkinsburg-Braddock engagement, Coach Hammond's boys will be the last test for the Carrollmen before their tilt with Greensburg, on which they are pinning their hopes for a championship this year. The Braddock tilt probably will decide the lineup which will take the field against Coach Loucks' machine next week. Wilkinsburg is being touted as a contender for the league title.

Carey, Believed Pilot Choice, Off for Home

Max (Scoops) Carey, captain of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who held the same position with the Pirates, will leave today for his home in St. Louis after spending more than a week in Pittsburgh. Max came here to see the world series games.

Carey seems to be in line for the management of the Dodgers in the event of a change, but it isn't likely that Wilbert Robinson's status will be changed at this time. Scoops had a good year with the Brooklyn club, his health being better than it was in the previous season. The outfielder's many friends in Pittsburgh would feel elated if Carey were to get a team to direct. Always a smart player, they feel that he richly deserves such an opportunity and are confident he would be a big success in the managerial role.

COLLINS TO BE WITH A'S NEXT SEASON, MACK SAYS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—(INS.)—"I expect Eddie Collins back next season."

Thus did Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Athletics, today spike the report that Eddie Collins had played his last game with the Athletics and would try to make managerial connections with another club before next spring.

"I had several talks with Collins regarding next season's plans during the closing weeks of this year's schedule," declared Mack upon his arrival at Shibe Park, "and from Eddie's remarks I fully expect him to be with us next year."

The veteran second baseman who broke into the Athletics' lineup September 17, is away on a hunting trip in Eastern Canada. The party of eight includes Mark Koenig, Bob Shawkey, Bennie Bengough, Sad Sam Jones, Joe Bush and Dr. Wolfrei, of Pittsburgh. The party expects to return around November 1.

HARRIS AND MILJUS PLAN HUNTING TRIP

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 14.—Joe Harris, Pirate first baseman, plans to leave here in a few days for Centre county, to spend several weeks hunting. He will be joined by several other Pittsburgh players, including Johnny Miljus, who was a buddy of his in the World War.

PLAN GOLF PLAY

A medal play tournament under three-quarters handicap will be played Saturday over the course of the Edgewood Country Club. A trophy presented by the club's retiring president, John J. Jackson, will be given the winner.

Business First, Baseball Next, Ruth's Policy

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Oct. 14.—(INS.)—Babe Ruth puts business ahead of baseball—in exhibition games at least. Before starting play against the Brooklyn Royal Giants here, Ruth insisted upon collecting a guarantee of $2,500, holding up the game an hour while 7,000 fans raved.

Lou Gehrig, the Babe's partner, broke up the game with his second homer. Then several thousand youngsters broke it up permanently by swarming on the field and stealing the team's thirty-sixth and last baseball.

SOCCER by TOM BIRNS

NOT many games will be scheduled for the benefit of soccer fans tomorrow, most of the week-end being scheduled on Sunday. All of the games being out of the jurisdiction of the stopping of games. But while few games will be played, plenty of action is going to be on tap.

Had quite an interesting letter from our old friend, Jim Wallace, the Gallatin rooter par excellence, but what Jim is sore about is hard to understand. Of course, Jimmy would take special delight in the fact that Mustard Hollow had defeated Heidelberg, but why taunt us regarding that. Heidelberg will probably taste some more defeats before the season is over.

Jimmy points to the fact that Gallatin is well represented on the Mustard Hollow squad. And hints that Gallatin never seemed to get the praise due it. Well, Gallatin was a wonderful soccer town, and raised some of the best players that ever kicked a soccer ball; but the fact remains with all its talent Gallatin never won the national amateur cup.

It is very evident that plenty of real rivalry is going to be on tap between these clubs this season. The count stands 1 to 0 in Mustard Hollows favor. Can the champions tie that up? Well, there is plenty of money around Carnegie to state that Heidelberg will again be elimination champion in this district.

FIGHT PROGRAM COMPLETED

The Motor Square Boxing Club, though its matchmaker, Johnny Ray, today completed its card for next Monday night's show with the signing of Eddie Carver, Negro lightweight of the South Side, and Jimmy Belmont of Braddock for the second bout.

Maxie Rosenbloom of New York and Homer Robertson of Boston, middleweights, will appear in the 10-round main bout.

The eight-round semi-final will be between Lin Jordan, Negro middleweight of Johnstown, and Young Saylor of Charleroi.

In the opener of six rounds Chuck Spagnolia and Chuck Semak, young heavyweights, will make their bow to the fans.

Joey Katkish, local bantamweight, boxes Tony Mandell at Worcester, Mass., tonight.

Mike Moran, who now is in Indianapolis with Tony Ross, Carnegie junior welterweight, and his cousin, Tommy Moran, has been booked for three bouts by his manager, Mike Mitchell. He boxes Eddie O'Dowd over the 10-round route at Columbus next Monday night, Trip Limbago at Lafayette, Ind., October 28, and an opponent to be named at Terre Haute a week later.

Tony Ross boxes Johnny Pervis in a 10-rounder at Indianapolis Monday night. This will be Tony's first start in a couple of months. He was laid up with an injured hand.

Benny Bass, recognized as the featherweight champion, boxes Mike Ballerino, former junior lightweight champion, at Philadelphia Monday night.

ROBINS DENY PURCHASING BANCROFT FROM BRAVES

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(INS.)—Brooklyn baseball headquarters today denied purchasing Dave Bancroft, Boston club pilot. No negotiations looking toward such a transaction have been made, it was said.

"Yump on Yost" Is Battle Cry At Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The alliterative slogan makers at the University of Wisconsin, where the effort to break the "Michigan jinx" has been intensified over all other years have turned out this one:

"Yump on Yost."

The sign is plastered about the campus as one of the efforts by student groups to arouse the Wisconsin fighting spirit for tomorrow's game with Michigan.

Fight Results

At McKeesport—Young Rudy defeated Harry Taylor, 10 rounds; Teddy Esterbrook defeated Bobby Richardson, 10 rounds; Jimmy Belmont won referee's decision over Jimmy Duffy, 6 rounds; Chuck Humes defeated Bill Dorias, 6 rounds.

At Silver City, Cal.—Danny Kramer defeated Jackie Spencer, 10 rounds.

At Tacoma, Wash.—Doc Snell defeated Johnny Williams, 6 rounds; Henry Hoker defeated Tiger Thomas, 6 rounds.

At Atlanta—Paul Berlenbach and Joe Lohman drew, 12 rounds; Larry Avers defeated Spike Webb, 10 rounds.

At Akron—Johnny Risko defeated Quintin Romero-Rojas, 10 rounds; Eddie Ruttman knocked out Tony Larocco, one round.

At Miami—Cowboy Frankie Osner defeated Jack Lewis, 10 rounds.

At Saginaw, Mich.—Eddie Dyer defeated Kewpie Trimble, 10 rounds.

At Philadelphia—Phil Raymond defeated Eddie Reed, 10 rounds.

KEARNS POSTPONES DEMPSEY ACTION

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Talk of peace between Jack Dempsey and his former manager, Jack Kearns, was intensified today after Kearns made known he had agreed to an indefinite postponement in Trenton, N. J., of action to recover $333,333.33 from Dempsey under terms of a former contract.

Arthur Driscoll, Dempsey's counsel, denied, however, that there had been peace overtures.

Shoeless Team Continues Unbeaten

LYNCHBURG, Va., Oct. 14.—(U.P.)—The "Shoeless Wonders" football team of the Presbyterian Orphanage here bids fair to equal its defeatless season of last year. In the opening game yesterday, the barefoot team defeated Virginia Episcopal, 19 to 0, the feature being a zig-zag run by George Branham, 15-year-old fullback, which netted 60 yards to the goal line. To accomplish this distance, Branham dug his toes in about 130 yards of wet sod.

The only shoe worn by the team during play is that used by Blair Watts, 17-year-old quarterback, for kicking. He discards the shoe as soon as the kick is off and sometimes, in the heat of battle, does not wear it even when punting.

TUNNEY ON MOOSE HUNT

ROCKWOOD, Me., Oct. 14.—(UP)—Gene Tunney, accompanied by his friend, Sam Pryor, Jr., and Bert Fowler, guide, is leaving for a two-day moose hunt on Mount Mahaney and Mount High Peak in the Canadian National Park. The heavyweight champion will return to Fowler's camp on Moosehead Lake early next week.

DISSENTION HITS TEAM FOR PITT GAME

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 14.—Debate was hot and heavy on the Drake University campus here today following the tiff yesterday between Head Coach Ossie Solem and Capt. Bill Cook, plunging fullback of the Bulldogs. It is practically certain that Drake will face the powerful Golden Panthers of the University of Pittsburgh here Saturday without the services of their captain, it was learned yesterday. Cook was told to "get off the field" and to stay off yesterday, following a quarrel with Coach Solem.

Opinion on the Drake campus was to the effect that Cook would not return to his place as fullback on the team, at least not without an apology from Solem. The opinion seems to be that Solem will not apologize.

Both men have refused to talk, though friends of Cook declare he is certain he will not rejoin the team.

Cook was sent from the field toward the end of the final scrimmage of the week after Solem charged he had let a freshman end grab two passes "beneath his nose." Cook denied that he was at fault and a debate ensued that ended with Solem's order for the captain to leave the field and not return.

Cook has been for two years Drake's first string fullback and was named only a short time ago to lead the Bulldogs this season.

Pittsburgh's Panthers arrived in Des Moines this morning to prepare for their game with Drake Saturday.

Walter Eckersall, famous all-American quarterback of two decades ago and well known critic, will referee the game. John J. Griffith, Big Ten commissioner will umpire. Lambert of Ohio State will act as field judge and Dean Watheys of Syracuse will officiate as head linesman.

TILDEN BACK ON STAGE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—William T. Tilden, has temporarily deserted the tennis courts for another fling at the stage. An announcement at a local theater said that Big Bill would revive his New York stage play, "They All Want Something," for an indefinite run starting October 22.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

WHEN the Pirates won the National League pennant and the world series in 1925, President Barney Dreyfuss taught the other big league magnates a lesson by signing up all his players for the following season without the sightest suggestion of trouble. He had practically the entire team enrolled again before the pastimers departed for their winter homes.

Previously the owner of every pennant-winning club had experienced nothing but trouble in getting his athletes in line for the season following their flag success.

The diamond performers reasoned that their achievement in winning the pennant entitled them to huge increases in salary, and many of them demanded so much more money than their employers thought they were worth that a long holdout period elapsed before an agreement on terms could be reached.

BUT the manner in which the Buccaneer owner handled a similar situation after the world series of 1925 was in striking contrast to the methods of other magnates in other years. The result gave every evidence that he had treated his players with fairness and liberality, for not a single balk or holdout developed.

And now he appears to be doing the same thing again, as from all reports he is experiencing no difficulty in signing his men for 1928 despite the fact that players who have just won a pennant consider themselves in line for healthy raises.

APART from Manager Owen Bush, Pitcher Johnny Miljus is the only Buccaneer whose signing has been made public, but it is reliably reported that several others have also affixed their signatures to 1928 contracts.

It is said that every Corsair still in Pittsburgh who has had an opportunity to sign has done so, and that no player who has been asked to sign thus far has refused.

AN American League star who is thought to be in line for the biggest salary boost in the majors for next season is First Baseman Lou Gehrig of the Yankees.

Not only did Gehrig give Babe Ruth a hard chase for home run honors, but he also played brilliant ball in other departments and showed the finest kind of spirit throughout the 1927 pennant race and during the world series, with the result that he is now one of the outstanding stars of baseball and will be among the highest paid performers next year.

A little peep into Gehrig's home life, showing the high character of

CARNEGIE VARSITY GOES TO COUNTRY

By JESS CARVER.

BOB WADDELL rounded up his Carnegie Tech football team after practice yesterday, packed up their duds and herded 'em off to the country, where they will put the finishing touches on their training for the W. & J. game Saturday. They'll be joined some time today by Advisory Coach Steffen, who arrived in town from Chicago late yesterday.

No one seems to know where Tech is hiding, and for that matter no one cares. All the boys are worried about is whether they get back in time to give W. & J. a football game Saturday.

Despite Andy Kerr's wails of protest, W. & J. is being installed a hot favorite over Tech. Whether the field be dry, wet or indifferent, W. & J. is going to get the call. Folks feel that Tech lost too much when Mefort, Yoder, Donohoe and Goodwin hung up their cleats to be able to compete on an equal basis with W. & J., even though the Presidents did lose five or six men.

As has been said before, the W. & J. backfield is superior to Tech's. The lines are fairly equal, though with Cooper in the harness, the Skibo forward wall holds a slight edge, though a very slight one.

The Tech ends and tackles are going to have to bear the brunt of the W. & J. attack. If these four men work right, they can stop W. & J.'s off tackle thrusts and end runs. If they don't, it will be just too bad. And from all reports, the Red and Black plays are hard ones to stop, and Old Bill (Himself) Amos plays Kirkman, Cooke and Hetsel clatter off the tackles and ends like demons, havoc with the center of a line.

Tech will depend on Howard Harpster and his great toe for the kicking. "Howardy" is just as liable to perch on the 20 or 40 yard line and drop-kick a point or two. If he does, and turns the trick in the first quarter or early in the game, W. & J.'s morale, never any too great in Pittsburgh, may take an awful slump.

But you can bet on this. If the Tech tackles and ends fall down on the job, all the kicking or running Harpster can do, or all the line plunging Letzelter may get away with will be for naught. For once Amos, Kirkman and Cooke get started—oi, hold everything.

Johnny Weibel tells me that the Dukes put in one of the hardest afternoons of scrimmage of the season yesterday, mud and all. Coach Layden, in an effort to develop the drive that is the secret of any good football team's success, is working his Dukes long and hard. He's teaching the boys all he knows and a lot of things he don't know. The Duke drive, with the exception of one game, has been sadly lacking this fall.

Against Bethany's Green Bisons, the Dukes will have to drive and drive. Elmer tells 'em to "get in there, mile a minute." They'll have to do just that to beat Bethany.

WASH.-JEFF'S. ACE

BILL AMOS

Amos, who is playing his last season of a brilliant career at Wash-Jeff, is a quadruple threat star Carnegie Tech will have to face once more in the annual battle between the institutions at Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon. Amos is a good plunging fullback, open field runner, punter and passer. Before matriculating at Wash-Jeff he gained wide fame at Kiski Prep School.

WILL FATES AID W. & J. AGAIN?

MY GOOD friend, Lawrence (Yellow) Stewart, of Washington, Pa., as talented a newspaperman as there is in the length and breadth of this broad land, although he "chooses" to remain in what are technically known as the "sticks" by those folks who live in the larger centers, has done some brushing up on the history of football games between Wash-Jeff and Carnegie Tech, who meet again tomorrow on the Forbes Field gridiron, and he comes up with some interesting data on how lucky the Presidents have been in recent years against the Tartans.

BACK in 1921, Stewart recalls, W. & J. pulled the game out of the fire by taking advantage of a couple of fumbles by Tech late in the play, and, in 1922, with Tech leading, 7-6, after having outplayed the Red and Black all of the way, a Tech back, in trying to break down a desperate forward pass by W. & J., batted the ball into the arms of Charley West, who sprinted for a touchdown and then kicked the try-for-point that eked out a tie for his team.

In 1923, Tech scored first and Wash.-Jeff failed to make its goal after

CAMERA CATCHES -:- ANDY KERR IN STUDY -:- OF FACIAL EXPRESSIONS

AT EASE

Andy Kerr, former Pittsburgh Central High School, Pitt freshman and Leland Stanford University football coach, now head mentor at Wash-Jeff, has a way all his own of expressing pleasure and displeasure as he sends his proteges through their daily workouts. Above he is seen in repose before the grind begins.

DISPLEASED

And here he is caught by the cameraman on the sidelines pointing out defects in the play of his men. He is telling them that, aside from being all wrong in their maneuvers, he is more than satisfied with the way everything is proceeding. In other words, he is indicating he'd prefer to have them do the thing his way.

AND WORSE

My, oh my, but he certainly is displeased in this picture. Can't you just seem to hear him say: "Goodness gracious, Agnes, but that's terrible!" or "Rotten!" or some such thing. When Andy is displeased he is DISPLEASED and no mistake. This expression is enough to drive any ambitious grid athlete to his best efforts.

DELIGHTED!

Now, now, that's much better. Look how the clouds have been scattered and the sun has broken through. The fox is tickled pink because his boys have grasped his idea and are running off that play to perfection. Perhaps he's visualizing a touchdown or two against Carnegie Tech with it tomorrow.

Purple Minus Fullback

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 14.—The Northwestern University varsity football team arrived here today for the game with Ohio State minus Tiny Lewis, hard hitting fullback, who is confined to a hospital in Evanston with a severe cold. The Purple star may be able to make the trip to Columbus, leaving tonight, but this is thought to be unlikely.

CHILLY SAUCE
By CHILLY DOYLE

MANY a baseball player's gun will pop away at the elusive duck or quail before the thought of spring training begins to thrill the athletes; yes, it may be much to soon to talk about next season, but it is hardly straying from the truth to state that Donie Bush already is dwelling on the uncertain spots of his contemplated 1928 club. Take the right side of the infield, for instance. Second and first base are as high in the air as a kite in view of Joe Harris' health.

IF THE Pirates had not been in the thick of the flag race, Harris might have been taken out of the lineup indefinitely or until he was pronounced O. K. by a physician. Joe played on his nerve in fifty or more battles, for the reason that whenever Grantham moved to first with Rhyne on second the club showed a tendency to slump. Even when Joe was unable to swing properly on account of weakness, he was able to make the other eight players function smoothly, and as baseball is a nine-man proposition, his personal appearance inspired his mates. Harris, I figure, was just about the resourceful man in the Pitts- lineup. Fellows like Smith aul Waner, with all their abili- ere given to making stupid plays.

HARRIS' baseball future is doubtful. Joe is thinking seriously of leaving with John Miljus for the Pacific Coast, where, Miljus believes, Joe would regain his health. Dark John has a plan to keep Joe in the woods of the Northwest and he has spoken of the idea in such a glowing manner that Harris finds himself on the verge of leaving. Stomach trouble and other ailments just about sunk Harris during the heat of the pennant fight. He would not attempt another season under similar health conditions. Joe is only 36; in the event that he can be restored to his normal health his bat, smartness and willingness will force him into the lineup.

SHOULD Grantham have to take up the first base duties, the keystone sack would continue to harass Bush. Available for this job would be Joe Cronin, Rhyne and Dick Bartell. Cronin, unfortunately, made three errors in a game in which the Pirates were fighting for first place. He was yanked, where if there had not been so much at stake he probably would have remained in action. On the previous day Joe's batting helped to win a ball game, but his bad afternoon had the effect of keeping him on the bench indefinitely. More than one Pirate thinks Cronin is a big league hitter, and some of them think he is better at short than at second. Be that as it may, Bush still seeks an infielder who can play second. Donie is sweet on Dick Bartell, who will again be a member of the Pirate training party at Paso Robles. Dick played short for Bridgeport, but the confident kid, himself, says he can play second. He will bear watching.

THERE is a chance that when Ki Cuyler is traded a first-sacker will come to the Buccos. The Reds still have two high-class first-sackers, and this surely is superfluous talent. Either Wally Pipp or George Kelly is a capable performer and in the event of negotiations between the Cincinnati and Pittsburgh management relative to Cuyler, the name of at least one of the first basemen would doubtless enter the calculations. Then there is much chatter about a straight out-and-out deal involving Cuyler and Hughey Critz.

WRITING in a New York paper, Daniel dishes up the following paragraphs on the recent unpleasantness:

After the series had been wild pitched to them, the Yankees had a big variety of impressions as to how and why they had duplicated the record feat of the Boston Braves of 1914.

Some blamed Gooch for failing to hold the ball and were in favor of calling it a passed ball. Most of the players sided with the official scorers in laying the blame on Miljus. Here are a few of the random impressions:

Joe Dugan should get credit for being one of the heroes of the series. He made a few plays that helped at very critical times.

Miljus is a great pitcher. Why did Bush hold him out?

The Waners certainly didn't look like stars in the field. They were as nervous as cats.

The air was dead for three games. We could feel that the Pirates were licked.

We were sincere when we said "four straight" after winning that first one.

Gehrig spoiled his chances to beat Gowdy's record by pulling the ball too much to right. Lou was in there swinging for a home run all the time.

Young Waner looks like the luckiest hitter we ever saw.

Don't they ever throw anything but curves in the National League?

In regard to Miljus, Donie Bush would have started him in a game had the series continued; in fact Bush seriously considered starting John in one of the four games played.

SPEARS' TEAM READY FOR INDIANA GAME

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 14.—Minnesota's football party arrived here last night in a special train and left after a short stay for Bedford, where the Gophers will be quartered tonight, in absolute rest.

The Indiana team has enclosed itself in a wall of secrecy and entered the final stage of its drive to stop "Herb" Joesting, with a long drill on fundamentals and special plays that will be used.

Former King Is Favorite

By ROBERT A. HEREFORD,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—That eminent showman, George L. Rickard, having successfully produced his 1927 edition of the annual "Battle of the Century" will entertain the customers with the "Battle of the Beauties" tonight.

The attraction will be staged in boxing's de luxe show house, Madison Square Garden. If you have kept abreast of the boxing market you will know that the bout will bring together those two handsome Canadians, Jack Delaney, the abdicated light-heavyweight champion, and Jack Renault, who has given up moving picture acting and returned to heavyweight fighting in a serious way.

You will also be well aware that the battle of the two Jacks will act as the opening gun in Rickard's preliminary campaign to develop a contender for Gene Tunney's heavyweight crown.

It is seldom that Mr. Rickard has been able to favor the customers with such pulchritude in his pugilistic performers. Jack Renault is just lately returned from Hollywood, where he acted the part of one of those dashing Northwestern Mounted Police indigenous to his native Canada. Oville Chapdelaine, or that Chap Delaney, or Jack Delaney, as his boxing name finally evolved, with a pair of shoulders made to order for a tuxedo and leading man features, has long been the idol of the feminine boxing customers.

Both Mamen Renault and Masien Chapdelaine have intimated that the other may have need of a beauty specialist after tomorrow night's affair.

Jack Renault, whose great handicap has been lack of a fighting heart, has been batting about among the big boys for nine years. He has decisions over George Godfrey, the latest dark menace to the heavyweight throne, and Fred Fulton, the floor favorite, and Bartley Madden accredited to him. The records also show that in 1923 Mr. Renault fought four rounds with no less a personage than his heavyweight highness, Gene Tunney. This bout was called no contest.

About the safest way to pick the winner is to bet all of your money that a Canadian named Jack gets the decision—and then there is danger of a knockout or a draw.

SPORT COMMENT

the Yankee star and his conscientious observance of what he considers his duties at home, will cause baseball followers in general to feel pleased at his approaching good fortune.

ONE of the members of the Gehrig family confided this to a Pittsburgher:

"When Gehrig was attending Columbia University his father was unable to do much for the support of the home, but his mother worked like a slave in order to be able to pay for Lou's education.

"When Gehrig saw a chance to get into professional baseball, he refused to let his mother make such sacrifices any longer, and accordingly he left college when he still had a year to go for graduation.

"Ever since the day he broke in as a professional, not only while he was in the Eastern League on the Hartford team, but also since he became a regular in the big show Lou has been taking five-sixths of his pay home and giving it to his mother."

THERE was an odd mixture of nationalties in the recent world series. A glance over the names in the Pirate and Yankee lineups would give the impression that the title debate had been something on the order of a meeting of the League of Nations.

From among those who actually took part in the series it is possible to pick out nine, or enough for a complete baseball team, who represented as many different nationalities, as follows:

Johnny Miljus, Serbian; Remy Kremer, Frenchman; Mike Cvengros, Austrian; George Pipgras, Dane; Tony Lazzeri, Italian; John Grabowski, Polish; Mark Koenig, Swiss; Joe Dugan, Irish, and Lou Gehrig, German.

AS a matter of fact, however, they are all real Americans, most of them being American born and merely of foreign extraction, while the others have become American citizens.

There is Johnny Miljus, for instance. Though his parents are natives of Serbia, Johnny was born right here in Pittsburgh, and therefore is not only an American by birth, but became a greater one than the average son of Uncle Sam by the valorous service he gave in the World War.

The same, by the way, may be said of Joe Harris, Pirate first baseman, who, though of English descent, is an American by birth, and, like Miljus, earned exceptional recognition from his country by his valor in the great war.

Miljus and Harris, buddies in the Army, and now teammates on the Pirate crew, saw more real front-line action in the war than any other baseball players in the service, excepting such men as Eddie Grant, Del Alderman and other soldiers from the diamond who made the supreme sacrifice.

ONE of the earliest post-season rumors in connection with the Pittsburgh club's operations toward adding more new material to the Pirate crew for 1928 was to the effect that the Corsair management had closed a deal for the purchase of Mickey Finn, leading second baseman of the Pacific Coast League this year.

President Barney Dreyfuss denies that the deal has been closed. He admits that negotiations for the purchase of Finn were on for a time, but that the Coast League club now holding title to his services has not put a definite price on him, so that nothing has been done.

However, there is at least a possibility that Finn will be bought later and coast reports of Finn's ability are to the effect that if the Rovers land him they will bag one of the most promising players on the Pacific slope.

SPORT LENS

Idaho. Daily in the season he sits and watches boys whose names you never have heard; daily he allows the baseball oysters to pass through his hands in nervous anticipation of coming upon a pearl.

Joseph Devine weaves you many fantastic tales of raw baseball on the hoof, cataloguing the herd, branding this one and the other, finding a defect here, a prize now and then. Quaintly descriptive, Joseph Devine treads a smooth conversational path until someone with the devil in his eye says: "Now, Joe, tell us how you came to blow Lazzeri." (Lazzeri came out of the Coast League to star with the Yankees.) And Joseph pulls up his trousers leg a bit, crosses one knee over the other, takes a long puff out of a thick cigar, and says. . . .

Asking Devine why he didn't get Lazzeri after he had got Waner, Kremer and Miljus is like asking a batter who has got a home run, a double and a triple why he didn't get a single in his last attempt, but Joe was asked about Lazzeri just to stir him up a little.

IN all the rumors of big league managerial shifts to come next season the name of Casey Stengel, successful and colorful pilot of Toledo, winners in the American Association, comes up too infrequently. Mr. Stengel converted, by a winning club, baseball heretics in Toledo to hit the baseball sawdust trail. From the doldrums Casey lifted the Toledo baseball populace to the summits, whence they shouted and roared. Yet this same Casey, valuable beyond all doubt, is somehow being overlooked in the schemes for new big league managerships.

It was by their acts in the same American Association that Joseph McCarthy, worker of miracles in Chicago, and Owen Bush, successful at Indianapolis, moved into the greater calcium of the majors—but here is Stengel, another winner, failing to get the right kind of a tumble.

IT IS not altogether on the side of mere baseball leadership that Casey's friends shout for recognition. It is on the side of great human appeal, ability to make friends, and a great capacity for injecting a nippy flavor into baseball that Casey's friends trust his work at Toledo will not be overlooked.

Any man combining the grotesqueries of the great Casey with fine baseball talent must be one of the real gems in the baseball brooch. The only worry is that Casey when he at last lands again in the big league will grow extra solemn, quite owlish. This would be a great loss to the national humor. Casey without his stories, without the faces he makes, or without that highly comical pantomime so shrewd and biting that it is the despair of his enemies would be like Pilsner without the foam, a banque without guests.

Managerial talent is not so plentiful that Casey Stengel should be allowed to droop on the minor brush before being clipped for display in the major league window. Let us trust his baseball fragrance is not to be lost on the desert air. Here is one vote at least for Casey Stengel.

LOCAL CAGE LEAGUES START REORGANIZATION

The Allegheny County, the P. and O., the Catholic Lyceum, the Commercial and Industrial and the former Gazette Times Junior Leagues are being reorganized for the coming season.

These leagues, the outstanding ones of the Tri-State district last season functioned according to schedule and in every instance but one the loops wound up as they started.

In the County Circuit this year will be found the leaders of last year's circuit, while several applications for berths are on file. That the loop will be stronger this year is already certain.

The P. and O. League which stood out last year as the greatest loop in the first class lightweight division and second only to the County loop in the semi-pro ranks already has enough applicants for a circuit larger than last season.

SAM TO DEFEND TITLE

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—(INS.)—Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion of the world, whose apparent indisposition to work at his trade has drawn the fire of various state boxing commissions, has agreed to defend his title here November 14, Promoter Jim Mullen announced today. Mullen declared he had secured the signature of Mandell's manager, Eddie Kane, who agreed to send his Rockford flash against any opponent Mullen selected.

BUSCH LEAVES ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 14.—William H. Busch, former Pittsburgher, attempting to break the coast-to-coast marathon record, left here this morning for Indianapolis. Although he has lost 20 pounds, Busch appeared to be in fine form. He has averaged approximately 50 miles a day in running 2,155 miles from Los Angeles to this city.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The raw sugar market was quiet early today, and as no sales were reported prices were unchanged at 4.71c for Cuban, duty paid.

There was an easier tone to the raw sugar futures market under increased selling by trade and commission houses, which was evidently promoted by the easier London market. Prices at one time showed net losses of 3 to 5 points, but around this level a little covering developed and partial rallies followed, with prices at midday 2 to 4 points net lower.

The refined sugar market was unchanged at 5.80c to 6.10c for fine granulated, with all of the high-priced refiners accepting orders at 5.90c.

For nine months ended September 30, net income amounted to $[illegible], or $1.23 a share, as against $[illegible], or $3.31 a share in the same period in 1926.

Stocks of Copper Low.

Total stocks of copper, including refined and blister metal, now are the smallest in more than a year, according to the September statistical report of the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. Supplies in the hands of producers never were smaller in proportion to deliveries.

Loans Off $845,000.

Loans to brokers and dealers by New York Federal Reserve member banks as of October 11, totaled $3,394,798,000, a decrease of $845,000 from the previous week, it was announced by the Federal Reserve Board. The total of $3,395,[illegible] reported as of October 5 represents the peak to date.

N. Y. Federal Reserve Ratio Up.

Ratio of reserves of the New York Federal Reserve Bank for week ended October 12 stood at 74.9 per cent, against 71.2 per cent a week ago and 78.9 per cent a year ago. Federal Reserve System ratio of reserves for week ended October 12 was 75.0 per cent, against 74.9 per cent a week ago and 73.1 a year ago.

Brazilian Loan Offered.

One of the largest international loans to make its appearance since the war is an offering today of $41,500,000 United States of Brazil 6½ per cent external sinking fund gold bonds of 1927. The offering is divided into $41,500,000 of bonds for the American market and 8,750,000 pounds sterling of bonds offered simultaneously in Europe. The American bonds, maturing October 15, 1957, are priced at 92½ to yield over 7.15 per cent. This offering is made by a group headed by Dillon, Read & Co. with whom are associated The National City Company, Lee, Higginson & Co., Blair & Co., Inc., J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, White Weld & Co. The First National Corporation of Boston, International Acceptance Bank, Inc., Continental and Commercial Company, Illinois Merchants' Trust Company, The Union Trust Company of Cleveland, Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co. and Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. The Dominion Securities Corp., Ltd., are offering a portion of this loan in Canada.

Union Bag and Paper.

An issue of $3,000,000 Union Bag and Paper Power Corporation first mortgage five-year 6 per cent bonds is being offered today by a group headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Hodenpyl Hardy Securities Corporation, and Hambleton & Co., at par and interest, yielding 6 per cent. Proceeds of the issue will be used in part for the construction of a new pulp mill at Tacoma.

General Motors Sales Gain.

Retail sales by dealers of General Motors cars and trucks in September aggregated 122,[illegible] units, against 119,224 in September, 1926, and 114,819 in August, this year. Sales by the various divisions to their dealers last month totaled 146,[illegible] cars and trucks, against [illegible] in September last year and [illegible] in August, 1927.

More Cotton Consumed.

The census bureau reports there were consumed, exclusively of linters, during September 627,321 bales of cotton against 570,570 in September, 1926. Cotton on hand in consuming establishments September 30 was 1,113,776 bales as against 976,541 September 30, 1926. Cotton on hand in public storage and compresses September 30 was 5,944,[illegible] bales against 5,287,[illegible] a year ago. Consumption figures were larger than generally expected, but were more than offset by lower Liverpool cables and a favorable view of the weather. Consequently, prices were easier early in the day, although movements were held within narrow limits. There was trade buying on a scale down.

Canadian Rail Orders.

The Algoma Steel Corporation has booked 10,000 tons of steel rails from Canadian railroads, rolling of which will begin within a month.

First National's Deposits Rise.

The current statement of the First National Bank at Pittsburgh shows deposits of $75,449,071, comparing with $72,545,[illegible] on June 30, last. In the same time resources increased from $92,461,[illegible] to $95,714,[illegible].

Seminole Output Declines.

Seminole area crude oil production for 24 hours ended 7 a. m., October 13, totaled 442,000 barrels, a decrease of 4,[illegible] barrels from the preceding day.

U. S. Foreign Trade Declines.

September imports amounted to $141,000,000 as against $143,282,000 and exports were $426,000,000 against $448,[illegible] a year ago. Nine months exports totaled $3,509,407,000 against $3,467,[illegible] and imports were $3,112,[illegible] against $3,330,477,000 in the same time last year.

Market Opinions Differ.

Seldom during the present year has Wall Street seen such a difference of opinion regarding the stock market than exists at present. Some bankers believe that the market has been correcting its position during the recent period of irregularity, and is about ready to resume the advance. Others hold that the period of technical adjustment will run for another six weeks to two months. However, the consensus is that no major downward movement is in sight. Even the financial interests who look for further extensive reaction hold that such a movement will prepare the way for another substantial advance next year. It is argued that the continued rise in bond prices foreshadows prolongation of easy money conditions, which will sustain general business as well as the market levels of standard stocks.

Electric Auto-Lite.

Statement of Electric Auto-Lite Company for nine months ended September 30, which will be made public in a week or 10 days, is expected to show profit after all charges, but before taxes of $3,100,000. This compares with $1,841,[illegible] in same period of 1926. Approximately 500,000 starting-lighting systems will be produced in 1927, topping by almost 40 per cent the 1926 record of 359,[illegible] sets.

Gabriel Snubber.

Gabriel Snubber Manufacturing Company reports for quarter ended September 30, 1927, net income of $141,[illegible] after depreciation and Federal taxes, equivalent to 71 cents a share earned on combined 200,000 no par shares of Class A and B common stocks. This compares with $205,[illegible] or $1.12 a share in preceding quarter and $149,[illegible] or $1.14 a share in third quarter of 1926. Net income for first nine months of 1927, totaled $381,[illegible], equal to $1.90 a share, comparing with $[illegible] or $[illegible] a share in first nine months of 1926.

Youngstown District Payroll Up.

September Payroll by Youngstown industries of $6,944,757 represents a gain of $75,000 over August and $237,000 over July, but less of $616,000 compared with September, 1926. In first nine months, industries distributed $63,173,[illegible] in wages against $63,[illegible] for corresponding period of 1926.

Investors Holding Steel.

Brokers' holdings of U. S. steel common on September 30, last, amounted to 1,128,[illegible] or 24.47 per cent of the total common stock outstanding against 1,187,[illegible] shares or 26.[illegible] per cent at the end of the second quarter and 1,472,[illegible] or 29.01 per cent on September 30, 1926. Investors' holdings of steel common at the end of the third quarter were 3,[illegible], or 74.[illegible] per cent of the stock outstanding against 3,[illegible] or 72.[illegible] per cent on June 30 and 3,[illegible] or 70.[illegible] per cent on September 30, 1926.

Philadelphia Company.

The Philadelphia Company and subsidiaries and affiliated operating companies report for six months ended June 30 net income of $4,152,[illegible] after depreciation, Federal taxes and preferred dividends of subsidiary equal after preferred dividends to $4.02 a share on the outstanding common.

Madison Square Prospects.

Madison Square Garden Corporation estimated net profits for eight months ended August 31, 1927, were $165,000 after taxes and charges, equal to $1.74 a share on 224,[illegible] shares no par common. George L. (Tex) Rickard, president, estimated that last four months to December 31, would bring net for the year to $1,000,000 or about $4 a share compared with current dividend requirements of $1 a share.

Detroit Employment Gains.

The Employers' Association of Detroit reports employment figures for the week ended October 11 as 194,[illegible], an increase of 1,[illegible] over last week, but a decrease of 72,[illegible] from the corresponding period last year.

Steam Slack at $1.

In the local district steam slack is at $1 a ton, although some sellers are asking $1.15. Gas slack is quoted $1.25. By-Product coking coal ranges between $1.80 and $1.95.

Scrap Lower in Mid-West.

Iron and steel scrap has declined 25 cents in the Chicago district, heavy melting steel now being quoted $11.50 to $12.

Now Balkite "B" costs no more than the ordinary "B" eliminator

Quality in radio reception today requires high voltage power tubes. High voltages make "B" batteries uneconomical. Provided you buy a unit that will give you years of service, light socket "B" power costs much less in the end.

Three models to suit every requirement.

PRICE

$35.00
$42.50

The 300,000 Balkite "B"s in use have shown that Balkite "B" lasts longer than any other device in radio. The famous principle of electrolytic rectification on which Balkite "B" is based is so reliable that it is today standard on the signal systems of most of the railroads of the country.

Balkite "B" is a permanent piece of equipment. It has nothing to wear out or replace. It will outlast a dozen sets of batteries. The first Balkite "B," after 5 years of service, is still as good as new, and will be so for years to come.

Constantly improved, Balkite "B" is today unmatched for smoothness of output. In the past it has been higher priced than similar units. Today, because of enormous production, it costs no more than the ordinary "B" eliminator.

Three models, 90 to 180 volts. Your dealer will recommend the one you need.

Forbes

Spate of Foreign Bonds; Are Bankers Conservative?

By B. C. FORBES

INSTEAD of being an Uncle Shylock, Uncle Sam is rather a Santa Claus for Europe. Apparently there is no limit to the amount of money America is willing to lend to other countries.

A fresh state of foreign borrowing is under way. We have already furnished foreign peoples fully a billion dollars this year and it looks as if the 1927 total will approach a billion and a half.

Also, the New York Stock Exchange is arranging to open its doors to an unlimited amount of foreign securities, thus making it easy for American investors and speculators to become far more heavily interested than ever before in the obligations of foreign concerns.

ON one day this week, Wednesday, the newspapers announced four big new foreign offerings for this market: $47,000,000 of Polish bonds; $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 for the Central Bank of Agriculture of Germany; a $30,000,000 Prussian loan; $20,000,000 for the commerce and private bank, Berlin.

On the same day appeared this dispatch from Washington:

"The State Department has approved a refunding arrangement with the French involving $75,000,000, and has had submitted to it by international bankers for approbation loans to Belgium, Austria, Poland and a number of other republics in Europe, as well as one each to Brazil and Nicaragua. Nicaragua is asking $50,000,000."

NOW, it is natural—indeed, inevitable—that the United States, having become a creditor nation and enjoying an export balance averaging half-a-billion dollars a year, should supply less fortunate nations with capital, just as foreign nations used to extend financial assistance to us when we were less opulent. No people ever had so generous a total income or so large an annual surplus of savings as Americans have enjoyed in the last decade. Our national wealth is beyond anything even remotely approached by Britain, Germany, France or any other country.

Hence our ability to lend abroad.

NEVERTHELESS, it would seem as if foreign borrowing is in danger of being overdone here. International lenders have had several unpleasant experiences in the past—Russia, Mexico and South America immediately spring to mind.

Is there adequate guarantee that none of the foreign loans floated here will prove unsound?

SOME of our bankers are shouldering tremendous moral responsibilities. The term "moral" is used instead of "financial" because in most instances the firms and institutions that float these foreign bonds do not retain ownership of any considerable portion of them but seek to sell the whole issue in each instance to the public.

In my opinion bonds emanating from second-rate and third-rate European countries should be regarded as speculations rather than as conservative investments. I doubt whether the high yields sometimes offered adequately offset the risk incurred.

ADMITTEDLY the needs of certain foreign countries are dire. Without outside financial assistance they would be unable to overcome budget deficits or to stabilize their currencies. To extend needed assistance may be very laudable. But whether in every instance it will prove sound business is another question.

Certainly the American investor should not be made to believe he is buying a gilt-edged investment if those distributing the obligations feel that the obligations are quite speculative. It is not enough for bankers to reply glibly, "The high yield ought to warn buyers that they are taking a risk." The majority of investors rely more upon trustworthiness of the bankers sponsoring an issue than upon their own ability—inability, rather—to analyze thoroughly the merits or meretriciousness of an obligation.

WILL all of the many houses now clamorously competing for the privilege of floating foreign securities prove faithful to the trust reposed in them by unskilled investors?

PERILED BY BLAZE, TOWN TO VOTE ON FIRE TRUCKS

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Oct. 14.—The borough of Greensboro which narrowly missed being wiped out by fire this week has decided on quick action against further fire risk and will vote at the November election on an $18,000 bond to provide modern fire equipment. At the recent fire it was necessary for outside companies to pump water 1,700 feet from the Monongahela river.

Standard Down on Profit Taking

Trading was in small volume on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today with some of the earlier quotations showing moderate recessions from the levels prevailing on the close Thursday. Slight fractional declines were noted in Standard Sanitary in the early market, but there was no evidence of pressure on the stock.

Quite a volume of Standard sold Thursday around 105, but it was well supported at that figure. Observers were of the opinion that the rise to the 105 level had attracted some profit-taking from holders who purchased their stock at considerably lower figures and there was an inclination to believe that the price may rest around the present level until new impetus is supplied to carry the advance farther. According to persons usually in touch with Standard, the move has not yet been completed and a price well above current figures will be seen before the real reason for the main advance is known.

Pittsburgh Plate Glass scored a strong come-back, recovering practically all of the loss sustained recently when it fell back to $200 a share. Bids were raised to 210 before any stock was available today and a sale at that price was followed later by transactions at 215. These trades were all 10-share lots. Plate suffered a decline of about 20 points over the last several weeks, mainly due to the elimination of the $5 extra dividend the company had declared last October and in October, 1925. This year the directors ordered only the regular $2 quarterly payment.

Fuel issues were dull in the early session, but bids and offers were not materially changed from last night's quotations. Oklahoma Gas certificates sold at 22½, unchanged, while Arkansas Gas and Lone Star were handled at prices close to those of yesterday's late market.

A few sales of National Fireproofing were recorded at 20, a small fractional decline as compared with the previous close.

In the second half of the session the effects of Thursday's liquidation in Standard Sanitary became more pronounced. While offerings failed to develop any unusual volume, absence of buying demand permitted a further recession to below 104. Peak of the movement in the upward direction was 106, recorded a few days ago.

ROUSEVILLE WILL LOSE POSTAL CLASSIFICATION

OIL CITY, Pa., Oct. 14.—Rouseville will drop from a second class postoffice rating to fourth by the removal of offices of the Pennzoil Company from Rouseville to Oil City. The change likely will destroy hopes of Rouseville obtaining a Federal postoffice building.

RISE IN MONEY RATE CHECKS STOCKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Marking up of the call money rate from 4 to 4½ per cent, coincident with the calling of about $15,000,000 in bank loans, checked a promising rally in today's stock market. Early gains ran from 1 to 7 points and were distributed over a fairly broad list. Withdrawals of government funds in anticipation of Fourth Liberty Loan interest payments tomorrow are believed to be responsible for the temporary stiffening of money rates.

The day's business news was rather colorless in character. A further slight increase in steel mill operations helped to revive speculative interest in that group, but Steel common was one of the first to sell down in the early afternoon reaction. General Motors also yielded to pressure after an early display of strength, but Hudson, which has been weak for a few days, rallied briskly on short covering.

Public Utilities turned heavy when heavy offerings appeared in American Telephone. Jewel Tea and Lambert advanced to new high ground. Coppers were firm on talk of higher red metal prices. Private dispatches from Tulsa, Okla., stated that directors of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company had passed the quarterly dividend of 50 cents.

Heavy accumulation of Erie common, which advanced 3 points in the early afternoon, started a brisk buying movement in the eastern coalers. Chesapeake Corporation, Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Jersey Central all sold 2 to 3 points higher.

FOREIGN TRADE BALANCE IS FAVORABLE FOR U. S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—September exports from the United States amounted to $426,000,000 offset by imports of $341,000,000, leaving a favorable balance of trade for the month of $85,000,000.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened today steady at an advance of 2 points, to a decline of 6 points. Buying developed on the report of the Census Bureau showing domestic consumption of 627,321 bales for September, compared with 570,576 last year, but demand was promptly supplied by local and southern selling on more favorable weather prospects, and relatively easy Liverpool cables.

After advancing to 21.02c at the opening, December eased off to 20.88c under continued selling, while March declined to 21.19c, net declines of 15 to 20 points. Trade buying was reported on this setback, but the market was within 8 or 9 points of the lowest at the end of the first hour.

The early decline extended to 20.78c for December, or about 20 to 25 points below yesterday's closing quotations under southern, local and Liverpool selling. The more favorable view of the weather and the continuance of southern selling here evidently offset any bullish interpretation of the consumption report, but offerings tapered off somewhat after the close of the English market and prices were steadier. December advanced to 21.08c on covering, and the market was steady at midday within a point or two either way of yesterday's closing figures.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—The arrival on the market of nearly $200,000,000 in new offerings in the last two days has resulted in a sharp falling off in bond trading. Prices today showed further reflection of the competition furnished by the new securities. An appearance of hesitancy was created throughout the list and in many instances slight recessions were recorded.

Nevertheless, the readiness with which the new material was being absorbed lent itself to a comfortable feeling and indicated that the credit situation was being subjected to no serious strain. Consequently, liquidation was held to nominal limits.

Polish 8s displayed further strength, reaching 100⅝ for the first time this year, but the foreign list generally was characterized by sagging prices.

A few domestic rail liens, such as Chesapeake Corporation 5s, and one or two of the St. Paul issues, improved fractionally, while several others dropped slightly. International Paper convertible 6½s, which have been hovering around their peak price for the year, also fell back a small fraction. Public utility securities were neglected.

Little business was done in the Federal Government group.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, tax omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Export buying gave strength to wheat values today in the face of corn market weakness. European purchases of North American wheat today were estimated at 1,000,000 bushels. All deliveries of corn touched a new low price record for the season as a result of aggressive speculative selling when confidence of buyers appeared shaken.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

United Engineering and Foundry Company. Notice to Stockholders.

Annual Meeting — Special Matters

Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the stockholders of United Engineering and Foundry Company will be held at the principal office of the company, 2314 Farmers Bank Building, corner of Fifth avenue and Wood street, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on October 2[illegible], 1927, at [illegible] o'clock a. m. (Eastern Standard time), at which time, in addition to the election of directors and the transaction of regular business, the following, pursuant to resolutions of the Board of Directors, duly passed at their meeting held July 28, 1927, will be submitted to the stockholders for their approval or disapproval:

First—The reduction of the authorized common capital par stock of the company from 75,000 shares to 69,353 shares and from a total par value of $7,500,000.00 to a total par value of $6,935,300.00.

Second—The conversion of the 69,353 shares of the common capital par stock into 416,118 shares of common capital stock without nominal or par value and the exchange of six shares of no par value stock for each share of the present 69,353 shares of the common capital par stock issued and outstanding.

Third—The fixing of the stated capital of the company applicable to the no par value common capital stock at $5,400,534.00.

Fourth—Authorizing the $1,535,766.00 of the capital of the company heretofore credited against the common capital par stock be credited to surplus so that the same may be declared out in dividends from time to time at the discretion of the directors.

Fifth—The reduction of the authorized preferred capital stock of the company from 18,000 shares to 15,749 shares and from a total par value of $1,800,000.00, to a total par value of $1,574,900.00. Said 15,749 shares represent the now outstanding and issued preferred capital stock.

Sixth—Amending Article VIII, Section 3, of the By-Laws, to make the certificates for the common stock read "without nominal or par value" instead of a par value.

Seventh—Various other amendments to the By-Laws, a copy of the proposed amendments having been mailed in accordance with the By-Laws to each stockholder.

BUGS BAER Says

THE United States Supreme Court celebrated a rainy Sunday by giving Teapot Dome back to the more or less common people.

In case your memory is shedding its feathers, Teapot Dome is in Wyoming, which is out where the West begins and the East stops.

If we gossip correctly, Teapot Dome was public property until Al Fall started to treat it too publicly.

In a fit of economical generosity, Al presented Teapot Dome to Hank Sinclair, making the presentation speech in a fine lyric baritone.

Sinclair accepted the gift in the same spirit in which it was tendered. And there is a suspicion that he used dollar marks for punctuation in one of the finest orations never heard by the audience.

All of this would have been as fine as a toad's whiskers if Fall had owned the property in the first place.

One of the first laws in the ethics of a night watchman is that he shall not sell the building to the milkman in the morning. And the shepherd of another man's flock shall not clip the sheep to make himself an overcoat.

Therefore, the U. S. got all steamed up when it discovered that its custodian was converting government oil wells into loving cups for strangers.

That was five years ago and there may still be some oil left in the Dome. Which is not the important factor in the case.

If you steal a grapefruit from the government it will chase you for a century. And justice will triumph even if you have eaten the fruit and the government gets nothing back except the skin.

The Teapot Dome decision is a warning tab that public property is owned by the public even though the public is not allowed to walk on the grass.

We get arrested for trespassing on it, the cops chase us off it, but no man can sell it from underneath our feet.

And now Teapot Dome is back in the family. The original idea of this grease spot was to utilize it as a filling station for the Navy.

It is a good strategic position, being only a thousand miles from the ocean.

Three years of litigation were necessary before Sinclair would give back government property willingly and spontaneously.

Proving that it is not more blessed to give than to receive if the decision is up to the Supreme Court.

Purer Films Vital To Industry and Morals

Federal Censorship Alone Will Guarantee Them.

Mr. Louis B. Mayer's statement on the desirability of purer films is entirely sound, and he is speaking both in the interest of the public and in the interest of the film industry.

Suggestive films and ultra-sex films have become altogether too numerous of late. Their effect on the community is bad and their reaction on the industry is bad.

The explanation of this flood of sex films is simple. That is the cheapest and easiest way of attracting the attention of a certain prurient element of the public.

However, thank heaven, the larger element of the American public are wholesome, pureminded people, who do not approve of suggestive films, and who do not enjoy seeing these sex films, and who protest against the overabundance of them whenever opportunity offers.

If the moving picture producers will look to the cards that they ask their audiences to write for their guidance at the previews of pictures, they will find commendation for clean pictures, and they will see that a large proportion of these cards state, when approving of a clean picture, that it is a blessed relief from the sex pictures with which the public has become surfeited.

Therefore, from the narrow viewpoint of immediate returns, film producers would do well to clean up their sex pictures and devote more attention to pure romance and less to unwholesome sex-complications.

There is another and broader view of the situation which affects the general prosperity and development of the film industry and which vitally affects the general welfare of the public. It is this: The films probably make a more universal appeal than anything else which is presented to the eyes of the American people. The influence of the films for good or evil is enormous, because their patrons include not merely grown people with mature minds, but practically all the children of the country, whose minds are in an impressionable state and are more influenced by what they see than by any other means of mental approach.

The ideas of these children are very largely formed by these films. Their character is largely determined by what they see on the screen.

Women's clubs and moral organizations of various kinds do a worthy work in advising the public that certain films are good for the family, including the children, and that other films are not beneficial; but this advice, unfortunately, is very little heeded.

Young people are likely to see the most suggestive kind of films. Theater owners have not learned that they can build up a family clientele of the most valuable character by excluding such films. Consequently, all kinds of films go into the neighborhood theater, and the children, all of whom are film fans, see all these pictures, even the most immoral ones, and the effect on their thought and on their character is greater than most of us can conceive.

The efforts to prevent suggestive and immoral films through boards of censors have been a failure, because censorship has been so discouragingly unintelligent. Eliminating individual incidents, which generally accomplish little in the way of purifying the films, may yet do a great deal of damage in the way of ruining the construction of the picture.

There is, moreover, no accepted and established standard of censorship. The board of one state eliminates certain parts of a picture, and the board of another state eliminates different parts, and so on through the whole list of censorship boards; wherefore a producer cannot know what kind of picture to make to meet the requirements of the censors or what kind of appeal to the preferences of the public, or what kind of incidents properly to include in his production, or what kind to omit.

There is, furthermore, the tendency of the board to always eliminate something in the picture, no matter how thoroughly wholesome the picture may be, the idea apparently being that a censorship board must censor under any and all circumstances.

The whole system of state censorship is a complete and expensive failure. Expensive to the public in maintaining something that is useless to them. Expensive to the industry in compelling all kinds of eliminations and alterations in the picture, which accomplish nothing of practical value.

The only kind of censorship which could operate successfully is federal censorship, one important national board, composed of representatives from every state. These representatives should be intelligent, educated, experienced men and women, with moral but liberal minds.

The other influence for improving the ethical and artistic qualities of moving pictures must come from within the industry. This internal influence has operated more or less effectively under the management of Mr. Will Hays. To say that it has been perfect would be to say too much of any human institution, but that it has improved the quality of pictures generally since it has operated must be clear to any observing person. It could probably and will probably accomplish further improvements in the years to come, provided the moving picture producers realize the wisdom of Mr. Mayer's advice and are themselves in harmony with his plan for purer pictures.

The Hays organization has no power to compel the producers to improve the quality of their pictures. It can only hold over their heads the menace of what additional calamities may befall them through more rigid censorship in case they arouse the antagonism of the public.

It is undesirable, therefore, that censorship should be entirely removed. This menace should remain.

It is desirable, however, that censorship should take a more intelligent and more effective form. The abolition of individual state boards and the creation of a national board, with representatives from the states, would probably be the best way of unifying and harmonizing censorship and eliminating the unnecessary aggravation to the public and to the producer which makes censorship unpopular and ineffective.

Sincere co-operation between such a federal board of censors and the Hays organization of moving picture producers would probably accomplish the improvement in the general character of the films that Mr. Mayer desires and would do much to educate the youth of the country—and that means the whole country—along moral and ethical lines.

Really Bone Dry

Lucky If They Do It in 500 Years.

S. W. Lowman, head of prohibition enforcement, says his arm gets tired of signing orders to dismiss dry agents that take bribes. "Bribery is rampant," says he, "and the country will do well if it becomes dry in fifty years."

It would do well if it becomes dry in five hundred years. Use of alcohol, a part of life among all successful combative races for twenty thousand years past, cannot be eradicated easily. When you make tigers eat grass, and lambs meat, you will force Northern races to drink only water.

Also a grass diet might change tigers into sheep, and a meat diet might make lambs tigerish.

Three hundred million water-drinking Asiatics in India are held down by fewer than one hundred thousand gin, beer and whisky drinking Britishers, resident in India.

SOLUTION SIMPLE, AS YOU SEE

Garrett P Serviss Says:

Enigma of the Nebulae

"I am interested in the study of astronomy and would like to know how and from what a nebula originates.—D. P."

THERE are two kinds of the objects called nebulae; first the gaseous nebulae, and second the spiral nebulae. Associated with the first kind are non-luminous, or black nebulae, which it is supposed may consist of clouds of fine dust, veiling the stars behind them. The spiral nebulae appear to consist not of diffuse matter in a gaseous or dust-like state, but of swarms of stars so far away that only in a few instances can the most powerful instruments of the greatest observatories "resolve" the nebular glow into crowded stellar points. It has been suggested that these nebulae are outling, or "island" universes. However, ours is the biggest of the "universe," being, as Harlow Shapley has remarked, a "continent" if the spiral nebulae are called islands.

Now, since the spiral nebulae are not truly nebulae, but systems of stars, in which nebulous masses are sometimes seen to be mingled, your question evidently relates not to the spirals but to the gaseous, or dusty nebulae.

These are always associated with stars, and it was long believed that stars were formed by the condensation of nebulae. It is not certain that such a process does not occur, but the view now widely prevailing is that the nebulae are illuminated by the reflection of the light of near-by stars. A star might become surrounded with gases and dust originating from the star itself, either by the election of matter, or by atomic disintegration, or in both ways. But, we have no certain knowledge of the nebulae. The old nebular hypothesis, under which it was assumed that the nebulous clouds scattered abundantly through the heavens were "seed grounds" out of which stars sprang into existence was attractive by its simplicity and its agreement with appearances; but the recent discoveries concerning the structure and transformations of atoms have set scientific speculation into new channels, and complicated all problems of this kind.

Since the discovery of the dark, or non-luminous, nebulae, already spoken of, and which was mainly due to Professor E. E. Barnard, the eyes of astronomers have gradually been opened to the enormous extent of these objects. If you are familiar with the ordinary aspect of the night sky, you must have noticed the great dark irregular lane that runs lengthwise through the shining band of the Milky Way dividing it into two parts all the way from the constellation called the "Northern Cross" down to the southern horizon. This lane is now believed to be formed by a vast accumulation of black nebulae lying in an almost unbroken row along the axis of the galactic system. It hides the stars behind it, and does not lie near enough to any bright stars to reflect their light. (It should be remembered that an object in the sky may appear to be close to a star because both are nearly in the line of sight from the earth, though they may be, in reality, very far apart as measured along that line). The line of dark nebulae splitting the Milky Way is about 120 degrees long; that is to say, it embraces one-third of the entire circumference of the heavens.

Be a True Friend

YOU have a good friend who is not traveling the right road.

You have shielded him, and made excuses for misconduct that you would not tolerate in any one else.

And because you don't want to break your friendship, you do not talk, personally, to the offending person, as you should.

In a nutshell, you are selfish.

Not as good a friend as you pretend, are you?

The person who would be angry if you sought to check him or her in a course you consider dishonorable, is one to whom you should not become strongly attached.

Are you regarding as of considerable importance a friendship that is unworthy?

If you are capable of true friendship, don't let your friend advance nearer and nearer to disgrace without throwing out a restraining hand in an effort to save him.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Fliers All

IT USED to be that land and sea sufficed for man's domain; though far he went, he was content to take a boat, a train. The boundaries of distant seas were wide enough for all, and no man thought earth would be brought to seem too cramped, too small. With other days come other ways, we leave the outgrown past, still more and more our visions soar and now we fly, at last! Not those brave few who in the blue of airy regions rise, who launch frail wings, gay, shining things, upon the trackless skies. But you and I, we rise, we fly, we scorn earth's laggard pace; we live, we move with those well-loved who, dauntless, lead the race! Old, young, great, small are fliers all and in our dreams we go across the sky till stars draw nigh and earth falls far below!

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Thoughts while strolling: The cigar coupon beggars who make a living at this racket. That noble old Roman—William Muldoon. A specialist in Apache dancing has an electric sign. The block in the Fifties where they swap autos as they used to swap horses.

What's become of people who called servants "help"? And the Congress gaiter? Those fossilized families who refuse to be transplanted out of old brown stone fronts to gaudy apartments. Jaunty liner officers at a window filled with ship models.

A midget newsboy sitting on a fire plug. The unmistakable odor of fish. Those sedate men who sheepishly buy cheap western magazines. Youngsters on stilts kicking at a football. Tommy Lyman, the pale cafe tenor. Ditch diggers drinking from sanitary paper cups.

The ash pickers who rake refuse cans with spiked sticks. Two once famous night clubs now in a dark gloom. Marked-down sales of garden tools. Japanese chicken dinner places. Fire chiefs who race around town in two-seated autos, apparently looking for a fire.

The curio store where suppressed books are bootlegged. The long-haired musicians who loaf around Carnegie Hall, Virginia, Carolina and Vermont tea rooms. With poll parrots, Persian cats and books of poetry. A nervous man in front of a church looking at his watch.

A wrecked auto and a bent street lamp. Fur stores with bearded Russian proprietors. Hatless young men with horn rimmed glasses and varsity sweaters, carrying ukes. The street corner roasted chestnut vendors appear. Fall is around the corner.

A singing, disheveled woman is pushed into a Black Maria. Armand Vecsey, the composer. The new hotel city around the Plaza fountain. With a 15,000 transient population. And a bellhop brigade of more than 200. Cornelius Vanderbilt out for a walk.

Acrobatic dancing schools have become the fad of the moment. The patronage is composed largely of women who seek to reduce and have no intention of exploiting themselves professionally. They go through a somewhat torturous process of bending, high kicking and attempting to master the split.

A testy gentleman stepping into one of those swanky British haberdasheries, inquired to see one of the polka dot ties on display in the window.

"You mean the spotted cravats?" drawled a clerk.

"No," he snapped, "that egg-stain on your tie is a spot. I want one with polka dots." He got it, bless him!

Honesty

By DR. FRANK CRANE

J. E. B. Maxwell, a garage keeper, has recently had impressed upon him the honesty of most men.

Three years ago Mr. Maxwell was servicing a chance customer and hung his tire gauge on a ring on the door of the car. The driver drove away and took the gauge. Recently, after three years, this customer stopped in Maxwell's garage again and returned the gauge, telling where he had found it. He had intended to return it sooner, but could not remember the garage.

This illustrates the fact that honesty is a commoner trait than supposed. David, the psalmist, alleges that he said in his haste, "All men are liars." David was mistaken. Most men are honest.

The postmaster at Springfield, Ill., once told me that if the average man made a mistake of 2 cents at the stamp window he would walk a block or two back to rectify it. He would rather take all that trouble than to be bothered with the consciousness that he had swindled somebody.

I once got some money at a bank window and when stepping aside to count it I found that the clerk had given me $10 too much. I said to him, "You have made a mistake in giving me my money."

"We do not rectify mistakes once they are made at the window. Please step aside," said the clerk.

"But the mistake was in my favor. You have given me $10 too much," I said.

That was different, and the clerk accommodatingly counted the money and found that he had been mistaken.

Some people will cheat by picking up a newspaper and not laying down the money on the stand if the dealer is not there. Some people will try to cheat the railroad company and be delighted when the conductor overlooks them. But most people are honest, as the news dealer testifies when he leaves his pile of papers unguarded and trusts people to lay down the money when they take a paper.

Whether it be a moral sense or the discomfort of having done a wrong deed or the fear of being found out, the fact is that the average man finds it more comfortable to go along without cheating.

The card cheat is a rare bird and the clerk who taps the till is the exception contrary to the prevailing opinion.

Most people have a conviction that they are going to get along better if they keep in harmony with the universe. The fact that the stars in their courses fight against the wicked may be a mere superstition, but we don't like to take chances.

As You Were!

PERHAPS the hot weather was the cause of the military instructor's difficulties in giving his orders.

He was explaining the "halt" movement, and this is how he wanted it done.

"Now, my men," he said, "when I say 'Halt!' put the foot that is on the ground beside the one in the air and stand motionless!"

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized and Endorsed by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister

IN 1878 Edison invented a device which he called the microtasimeter. This was made for the purpose of measuring temperature down to the millionth of a degree Fahrenheit. Our everyday thermometers are based on Fahrenheit measurements. The microtasimeter would register the heat from a hand 30 feet away.

ANOTHER curious, little known invention of Edison's was the odoroscope. This instrument was made for testing gases. It was extremely sensitive to moisture and, as its name suggests, would detect odors so faint that no nose could smell them. Perfume or water sprinkled on the floor instantly registered on the dial.

IN the early days of the microphone, or loud-speaking transmitter (by means of which the sound of a fly walking could be picked up clearly) there was a hot dispute regarding its inventor. Decisions of the United States courts give Edison the credit. Note the similarity to the present-day radio microphone.

OUR amazement grows as we note the bewildering variety of Edison's inventions. He even tackled the snow removal problem of large cities. He constructed a machine that would scoop up snow and turn it into little blocks of ice, taking up one-tenth the room of the snow.
